ERASE ENEMY GUNS PERILING PELELIU FIELD

9,772 Japs Killed Since Invasion.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29 (AP).—Virtual conquest of three more islands in the Palaus by invading Americans who have killed nearly 10,000 Japanese since they first landed Sept. 15 was announced by Adm. Nimitz in two bulletins tonight.

More than 150 of the enemy have been taken prisoner.

The new islands, or islets, were invaded Wednesday, in part to erase enemy artillery positions close to the air base island of Peleliu, where bitter Nipponese resistance still persists from isolated pockets altho most of the island is in American hands.

In the first bulletin, Nimitz reported landings under warship and carrier plane cover on Ngesebus and Kongauru Islands, north of Peleliu, and said Ngesebus was completely secured with dispatch, including a 4,800 foot fighter strip.

9,772 Japs Slain.

His second bulletin said Kongauru was secured yesterday as was an unnamed island near it.

Ngesebus Island is linked to Peleliu by a long causeway. A short causeway links Ngesebus to Kongauru to the northeast. The Ngesebus airstrip extends across the island's blunt lower end almost directly in line with Kongauru.

Thru Sept. 28, Japanese dead on conquered Angaur and nearly conquered Peleliu totaled 9,772, consisting of 8,717 on Peleliu and 1,055 on Angaur.

American assault forces—marines and the 81st army division—now hold a cluster of nine islands at the southern end of the strategic Palaus. The principal holding is Peleliu, invaded Sept. 14, with its air field, which already is in operation against the enemy.

Widespread Air Action.

Other islands are Angaur, six miles south of Peleliu, invaded Sept. 16 by the 81st; Ngarmoked, off the south tip of Peleliu, seized Sept. 16; Ngabad, at the northern tip of the eastern arm of Peleliu, captured Sept. 20; an unnamed islet below Ngabad, occupied Sept. 19, and another unnamed islet off the east coast of Peleliu, overrun Sept. 22.

The admiral, reporting on widespread Yank air strikes against Japanese island positions Sept. 26 and 27, named the targets as Paramushiro in the Kuriles, Chichi Island in the Bonins, Iwo Island in the Volcanoes, Pagan, and Rota in the Marianas; Wake, Nauru, Truk, and three atolls in the Marshalls—Jaluit, Wotje, and Maloelap.

Liberators, finding no enemy shipping in the Truk atoll Tuesday, bombed installations.

17 Jap Ships Smashed.

ALLIED HDQ., NEW GUINEA, Sept. 30 [Saturday]—(AP).—Gen. MacArthur's headquarters today reported widespread Southwest Pacific air activity in which 17 small Japanese ships and barges were either sunk or damaged.

The Japanese sent six bombers in a night raid against the Philippines invasion base Gen. MacArthur is building at Morotai in the Halmaheras, 300 miles south of Mindanao but the bulletin said the raiders "dropped bombs harmlessly."

Drive on Gap and 4 Passes Into Germany

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 29 (AP).—Allied armies pressed the Germans back tonight at opposite ends of the 460 mile western front—at Arnhem, where the enemy blew up the approaches to the Neder Rhine bridge to balk pursuit thru Holland, and in mountain strongholds 11 miles west of France's Belfort gateway to southern Germany.

The Germans who slipped south across the Neder Rhine near Arnhem by night fled from their bridgehead as the British 2d army attacked. Then they turned and destroyed approaches to the bridge—which the "Red Devil" division fought more than a week to hold.

On the extreme south, the United States 7th army fought five miles across a battlefield strewn with enemy dead and seized a fortified village 11 miles from Belfort, which stands at the western edge of the gap leading to Germany, 30 miles beyond. The first snow of autumn was reported falling in this area.

Strike Toward Vosges Passes.

In a concerted drive to the north, the 7th army bent back enemy lines in gains of three to five miles and struck toward four passes thru the Vosges mountains on other routes to the Rhine.

The United States 3d army carved out a five mile gain between Metz and Nancy after blasting 82 German tanks, and the United States 1st army stabbed to the German frontier at two new points.

[The Berlin radio said "the focal point of fighting on the western front is now clearly on the southern wing" and the news agency DNB said the 3d army, going over to the attack, drove the Germans back in some sectors.]

Press Up Vosges Slopes.

In the battle for the historic southern gateway to Germany thru the Belfort gap and the Vosges passes to the north, French and Americans of the 7th army were pressing steadily up the slopes of the Vosges mountains and along the northwestern approaches to the Belfort gap.

A dozen miles northwest of Belfort, the last Germans were flushed from the forest of Mont de Vannes, but the heaviest slugging was east of Lure, which is 16 miles west of Belfort.

Here the Americans stood firm under an assault in strength. Then they beat forward five miles and captured the fortified village of

WIGWAG MESSAGES TO THE BOYS ACROSS THE SEA

TRIBUNE STORY GETS MAIL FLOWING AGAIN FOR MEN OVERSEAS

As a result of a story printed in THE TRIBUNE, the postoffice and the employment office of the railroad retirement board were swamped yesterday with calls from patriotic Chicagoans offering their services to relieve an acute shortage of employes to handle overseas Christmas mail.

"The Tribune story did the soldiers and sailors and the postoffice a very great service," Postmaster Kruetgen said. "My office has been busy with calls from business men to bricklayers offering their services in the emergency."

Postmaster Kruetgen referred to a story in yesterday's TRIBUNE reporting a help shortage so acute that 25 carloads of overseas gift packages and mail were tied up at one major railroad terminal.

YANKS 'SHOOT' REAL NEWS TO NAZIS IN ITALY

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 5TH U. S. ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 29.—German soldiers fighting desperately in front line positions against the steadily advancing American 5th army, receive truthful, factual daily news summaries by courtesy of the psychological warfare branch of the United States army. The news arrives promptly every morning by way of special artillery shells which carry a small explosive charge just sufficient to burst them in midair and allow the news sheets to flutter down.

The worth of the system was demonstrated when it was found that many of the prisoners captured in the last two weeks had copies of the news sheets in their pockets.

HOW TO WIN WAR IN PACIFIC: KILL 10 MILLION JAPS

The desperate, last ditch quality of Japanese resistance was stressed yesterday by a veteran of the Pacific campaigns of the marines' 2d division. He is Lt. Frank M. Wysaski, 34, of 1113 N. Dearborn st., one of eight Chicago area 2d division marines home on leave who visited Col. Chester L. Fordney, marine recruiting officer for the middle western district, in his headquarters in the United States courthouse.

"You'll have to knock off 10 million Jap soldiers to win this war," Lt. Wysaski said.

The officer went in with the first wave at Tarawa, and was wounded while carrying out orders to take three enemy pill boxes. He recovered in time to take part in the Marianas battles.

Cooper Gives His Version of Party in Hotel

BY KAY CLANCY.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 29.—Jackie Cooper, former movie actor and now a navy trainee at the University of Notre Dame, tonight took the stand at his trial to give his version of the affair in a South Bend hotel for which he and three other persons were named on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of two girls, 15 and 16 years old.

Earlier in the day the two girls testified that a drinking party was climaxed with the seduction of the younger girl in one of three rooms they said Cooper had rented on the ninth floor of the La Salle hotel. The party occurred July 22. Defendants in addition to Cooper are Pauline Frederick, 19; George Bender, Sheffield, Ill., and like Cooper, a navy trainee, and Olie Lowry, colored waiter at the hotel.

Honor for Visiting Friend.

Cooper, the first defense witness, told the court how he and three other V-12 trainees had made plans for a party on the night of July 22 in the hotel in honor of a visiting friend, to whom he said he had indicated that girls would not be invited.

Cooper said arrangements for the party were made two days before the night it was to be held and that he and his three companions each had contributed $9 to finance it.

"I first tried to engage a bedroom and sitting room at the hotel," he explained, "because my friend, who was a former Notre Dame V-12 trainee, intended to stay all night. But all I was able to get was three bedrooms.

"With $18 of the money, we bought two bottles of Scotch whisky. We intended to have a few sandwiches and a few drinks at our party."

Then, he said, the visiting friend was unable to show up at the party. The friend had told the court earlier in the day that he had intended to go to the party but was delayed in Chicago. He cannot be identified because Referee Albert L. Doyle ruled that none of the names of navy witnesses who testified at the hearing could be publicly disclosed. This rule also was applied to the names of the two juvenile girls involved.

He Picks Up Whisky.

Cooper told the court that on the night of the party he left the Notre Dame campus about 9:30 p. m., and picked up the two bottles of whisky at the home of a friend. Bender, with him at the time, opened one of the bottles and had several drinks before they went to the hotel.

"I first met Miss Frederick," Cooper said in response to a question from his attorney, M. Edward Doren, "three months before July 22. I met her parents on the same night."

He said he had since been at her home about a half dozen times and had eaten meals there several times.

"I saw Miss Frederick at least once or twice a week up to July 22. I took her to motion picture shows and to places to eat, sometimes in the company of other trainees from the naval station. She frequently came out to the training station to see me and frequently brought me my laundry.

Present at Party Planning.

"Miss Frederick was present on the afternoon when my companions and I planned the party."

The rest of his testimony concerned his personal life. He told the court that he was barely "3 years old" when he made his first motion

CHICAGO CAPTAIN'S BARS BRING IN A VAIN NAZI OFFICER

BREST, France, Sept. 25 [Delayed]—(AP).—American infantrymen get a laugh out of the vanity of German commanders who insist on surrendering only to officers of their own rank.

In one of three such episodes at Brest Lt. Arthur V. Stout of Pittsburgh, Pa., encountered a German captain who would not surrender to any one of lesser rank. Stout reported to his company commander, Capt. Jack A. Garvey, 4449 Jackson blvd., Chicago. Garvey, busy handling the surrender of a couple of German companies, had no time to bother with the whims of a single captain. He took off his captain's bars and pinned them on Stout's shoulders. Stout brought back the German captain, and returned the bars to Garvey.

HAND GERMANY THE TERMS NOW, SENATOR URGES

Offers Program to End Slaughter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Declaring "a decent respect for the opinions of mankind requires that the allies now declare the peace terms to be imposed upon Germany," Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] today outlined a seven point proposal designed to demilitarize Germany but not ruin her industrial economy.

Johnson, who assailed Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's "poorly conceived plan" to reduce Germany to a weak agricultural nation as costing the allied armies a "frightful loss of life," said the "time has come for something more realistic and specific than a blunt demand for unconditional surrender, coupled as it now is in the minds of all with the Morgenthau plan."

Sen. Johnson's plan.

The Colorado senator's plan included the following points:

"1. The 1932 German borders and her 1932 territory to be fully guaranteed except East Prussia which shall be set apart for other disposal. German population shall be moved from East Prussia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and the Baltic States.

"2. Not to exceed 50,000 Germans accused by the allies of being war criminals shall be turned over to the allies for trial and punishment.

"3. Germany shall be completely disarmed and forever remain disarmed except that necessary sidearms may be issued to local police officers. Military training and the production of military material in Germany shall be prohibited.

"4. The governments of Russia, Britain and, the United States each shall be permitted to maintain in Germany not to exceed 100 intelligence officers as observers.

Restoration of Property.

"5. Property that had been seized from inhabitants of Germany by the Nazis since 1932 shall be restored to such persons or to their heirs and full indemnities and reparations shall be paid.

"6. Germany may adopt and maintain the government of her choosing except that she shall not limit or abridge by law or otherwise the exercise of the freedom of religion, or of speech, or of the press.

"7. Any violation of the foregoing, whenever two of them shall determine that there has been a violation, will result in the military occupation of Germany by Russia, Britain, and the United States."

Hitting at Morgenthau's recently announced plan of stripping Germany of all its industries after the war, Johnson said:

"Prior to announcement of the Morgenthau plan, the Germans were surrendering in droves; now they are fighting like demons. The announcement of this poorly conceived plan has played directly into the bloody purposes of Hitler and Goebbels. It has cost and will continue to cost us a frightful loss of life."

Chinese Urge Global Police War Powers

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—The Chinese entered the secret Dumbarton Oaks conference this afternoon and bluntly announced that to the Chinese an international organization to maintain peace means precisely what many of its advocates have been saying it doesn't mean—a global military force that can go to war without waiting for approval by the United States congress.

Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to Great Britain and head of the Chinese delegation to the conference, told his country's views at a formal ceremony over which Secretary of State Hull presided.

There was no indication as to whether the secretary knew in advance the broad language that Koo was to use concerning the sweeping powers which the Chinese envision for the international organization.

Backs Military Force.

Many sponsors of the organization have insisted that it would not commit the United States to membership in a super-state. But Koo frankly stated that he believes the organization should embrace world economic and social problems in its planning.

Speaking in precise English in the great hall of the walled Dumbarton Oaks estate, Koo told the British and American delegations:

"Any breach of or threat to the peace should be stopped or forestalled by the application of measures which may, if necessary, take the form of military action. . . .

"We firmly believe that the proposed structure [of the international organization] should have at its disposal an adequate force which it can promptly use whenever and wherever it may be needed.

Must Have Prompt Action.

"In the light of past experience, we believe that plans for the application of necessary measures should be worked out beforehand by appropriate agencies, taking into account changed and changing conditions in the world.

"In our view it is important that such measures, to serve as an effective deterrent to actual or potential aggression, must have certainty, definiteness, and promptness of execution.

"Provision should therefore be made to obviate the necessity of consultation and debate at the last minute, which, in the light of past experience, would inevitably cause delay and thereby lead to an aggravation of a situation already critical."

Persons who heard Koo expressed the belief that his plan would prevent submission to congress of the international organization's intention to make war on any nation which the organization's council might term an aggressor.

Sovereignty Loss Feared.

Members of congress have been complaining that the proposal to let the President designate the American representative on the organization's council would mean that the President could commit the United States to war without consulting congress. Many defenders of the scheme, however, have insisted that it contemplates no world superstate in which the United States

U.S. FINANCING COMMUNISM'S GAINS: BROOKS

Blood Shed to Aid Reds, He Says.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

At a cost of tens of thousands of American lives and billions of American dollars, we are financing the rise of communism to power thruout the world, Sen. Brooks told a group of Republican women yesterday. This accounts partly for the Communists' open support of Roosevelt for a fourth term, he said.

Brooks recalled the President's statement in 1936 that the G. O. P. and the Democratic parties have the same stand on communism, but that the Democrats have a different method of handling the problem.

"While we have been willing to spend our resources of human life and material goods in the claim of being the 'arsenal of democracy,' we are fast becoming the 'arsenal of communism,'" Sen. Brooks said at a meeting at 3352 W. 63d st.

"Forced Into" Red Alliance.

"Because of the necessity of stopping the criminal maniac, Hitler, and the forces supporting him, we were thrown into war time alliance with Stalin and communism.

"Communism has been growing rapidly among the distressed people of France, Italy, and Greece. With the need of driving back the Nazis, we have aided Russia in its invasion of Finland. With our help the soviets are fastening their tentacles on Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania, and Poland. They are moving their forces and their philosophy into the Balkan countries."

In China the Communists, reputed to number 80 million, are complicating the problems of Chiang Kai-shek so that the war goes badly there, Brooks said. In line with the overseas situation, Earl Browder, head of the Communists in America, assailed our aid to the Chinese general, Brooks said in recalling Browder's speech at the Chicago Stadium Sept. 24.

"Browder Reveals Hand."

"This draft-dodging ex-convict complained that China's defeat today was due in large part to the failure to include Communists in the Chinese government," Brooks said.

"Thus he shows his plan. Thru the reëlection of Candidate Roosevelt and members of congress supporting him, Browder expects to increase and expand his communism here, advance it thruout the European continent, and force communistic control upon China as well."

In the wake of war comes the weakness that is the fertile soil for the well organized planters of communism, Brooks said.

"This is the day these conspiring world revolutionists have waited for," he declared. "This election Nov. 7 is truly a fateful one in America. Its outcome will determine whether we have truly been the 'arsenal of democracy' or the 'arsenal of communism.'

Cites Browder's Record.

Brooks delved into Browder's record. He probed Roosevelt's aid to Browder when the communist leader was in trouble.

"Browder served his first federal prison term for conspiracy in subversive activities against our country during the last World war," Brooks said. "Before that, he had served a year in jail in Missouri for dodging the draft. In 1941 Browder was convicted of fraud for using aliases to obtain passports for his trips to and from Moscow.

"After Browder served only 14 months of his four year sentence, Franklin Roosevelt commuted his sentence. Browder immediately went to work for the administration. One of his contributions was to hold a mass meeting in the Chicago Civic Opera house to denounce me and demand my defeat.

Voters Reject McKeough.

"This draft dodging ex-convict urged his followers to elect Raymond S. McKeough to the United States senate. They didn't, but re-elected me by over 200,000 votes."

'Total Victory' Hit in Commons

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Roosevelt-Churchill policy of insisting upon unconditional surrender by Germany has been responsible for the deaths of many soldiers, Aneurin Bevan, Laborite, said in the house of commons today.

"Unconditional surrender isn't a policy," said Bevan. "It's a slogan and it's a slogan that gives rise to increased military resistance on the part of the German nation."

Bevan described the allied political and psychological warfare as woefully bad and said he believed the war still was continuing because the government had not applied itself intelligently to waging psychological warfare.

No 'Principle' in Policy.

"We ought to have in our foreign policy certain governing principles, but we have none," he said. "The prime minister shifts about from speech to speech and it is impossible to see any continuity at all in what he is saying."

Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, replied that what is meant by unconditional surrender is that the allies are not prepared to make a negotiated peace with Germany and "are not to be bound by any bargain struck."

Eden asserted that Heinrich Himmler, commander of the home front, was training fanatical young Germans for a secret post-war organization to "revive the spirit and meaning of Nazidom in the German people."

Nazis Plan Next War.

"We have information," he continued, "that the German general staff, recognizing the inevitability of defeat in this war, are already thinking in terms of the next.

"Independently of this, Himmler is making preparations for organization of continued resistance during the occupation of Germany by the allies."

'SHOULD SIDNEY QUIT ANTEROOM?' HELD U. S. ISSUE

Roosevelt a Hostage, Says Eugene W. Castle.

Charging that President Roosevelt "is the political hostage of communists, New Deal dreamers, and big city machine politicians," Eugene W. Castle, president of Castle Films, Inc., yesterday warned that if the Roosevelt-Truman ticket is elected, Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, will move from an ante-room to the President's office in the White House.

"Furthermore," said Castle, speaking to a luncheon meeting of the Executives club in Hotel Sherman, "if Mr. Truman, the product of the Pendergast machine—the most corrupt political machine in the history of this country—should thru act of God or otherwise succeed to the Presidency of the United States, then Mr. Hillman would not only sit beside the desk, he would take it over.

Hillmanism Called Issue.

"Mr. Truman could not have been nominated without Mr. Hillman's consent. There is no question about that. This is not an issue between the two great parties. It is plainly an issue between Hillmanism and Americanism. Surely we did not go to war to put Hitler out over there, and put Hillman in over here."

Warning that "Americans who have fought the war heroically will expect to live under a government that safeguards lives, rights, and privileges of all free men without favor to individual, group, or class," Castle scored results of Mr. Roosevelt's meetings with allied leaders, asserting they have resulted "in a process of losing our shirt."

"We have shed one garment after another at each Roosevelt meeting," Castle asserted. "It is to be hoped that before the really cold weather sets in, this diplomatic strip tease will take a turn for the better for Americans."

"All Must Approve Pact."

Castle said no final peace pact will be worthy of the paper on which it is written unless all Americans know about it, understand it, believe in it, and approve it.

"Our basic demands for our own security and world peace should be so concise they can be put on one piece of paper," Castle said as he suggested a six point program: destruction of German and Jap leaders and of their war machinery; insistence on retaining bases we have built in the Atlantic and Pacific; a stand for the right of all nations, large or small, to govern themselves without interference; insistence on no allied tampering with the rights, groupings, and sovereignty of any people; a demand for freedom of religion, speech, press, and radio thruout the world; and maintenance of an adequate army, navy, and air force.

DEMOCRATS PLAN BIGGER SMEARS, LYONS REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator, predicted tonight the election of Gov. Dewey as President and said that burocrats and Communists then would get "a quick one way ticket out of Washington and out of the councils of the federal government."

Lyons and Atty. Gen. Barrett were among the speakers at a rally of Sangamon county Republican workers.

The senatorial candidate warned that the closing weeks of the Nov. 7 campaign might see bigger smear attacks upon the G. O. P. ticket, as the New Deal will resort "to any expedient to save its leader."

Barrett said he was "amazed" to read Winston Churchill had told the house of commons that the American people "cannot possibly have any knowledge of what has taken place at secret conferences." Secret conferences as conducted by New Deal diplomats may be proper under England's limited monarchy, but are completely un-American, Barrett said.

LAXITY IN TRIALS OF CRIMINALS IS HIT BY DEMPSEY

Juries Being Evaded, Candidate Says.

The State's Attorneys' club, which includes former Cook county prosecutors and assistant prosecutors, met in the La Salle hotel yesterday and heard John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, denounce the lax criminal prosecutions in the county while Thomas J. Courtney has been state's attorney.

Dempsey, who served five years as an assistant state's attorney, said that trial by jury in criminal cases has almost become obsolete in the county and that hardened criminals have been able to barter for light penalties.

Habitual Counts Waived.

"Only 81 convictions were obtained in jury trials of criminals in 1943 in Criminal Court building," Dempsey said. "There were only 170 jury trials during the year. As a result of failure to obtain convictions, the practice of evading jury trials in criminal cases has developed. Hardened and dangerous criminals are allowed to bargain for lesser punishment. In that same year 81 habitual counts were waived by the state's attorney's office.

"That means that 81 dangerous criminals were able to use their criminal records to get lighter punishments, while many first offenders were given more severe penalties."

Dempsey said that the laxity in prosecutions is reflected in the records of the Criminal court and police files. He declared that in 8,349 complaints of burglaries committed in 1943, only 128 burglars were sent to the penitentiary and in 3,948 complaints of robberies committed in that year, only 157 robbers were sent to prison.

"The police have become disheartened because they have seen criminals that they bring in being turned out in the Criminal court," he said.

Pledges Personal Action.

He declared that if he is elected there will be no bartering with criminals, and that he "will pitch in and prosecute cases personally." He said that the next four years will make the task of the prosecutor an arduous one.

"Statistics show that there is a rise in crime after a war, and, if history is repeated, there will be more crime after this war," he added. He pledged to assemble a staff of assistants who will have the ability to prosecute the cases.

Chairman of the luncheon meeting was Harry Pritzker. More than 90 former prosecutors attended.

Views of Dewey, F. D. R. on Free Press

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt, in a statement on National Newspaper week, Oct. 1-8, today said the free press of America "is in the forefront of democracy's battle for survival," and "will help to win the peace."

In a message to Editor and Publisher, the President said:

"The free press of America is a living symbol of democracy, and as such, it is in the forefront of democracy's battle for survival."

"By providing the people with honest news," he said, "it has enlightened the minds of the people and strengthened their will. It has loyally shared in the sacrifices and it has gladly and voluntarily abided by a code of censorship."

He said the press had met the national crisis "with courage, loyalty, and integrity."

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—Condemning what he described as dictatorial tendencies of the "government in power," Gov. Dewey expressed confidence tonight that "our free press will continue to resist government domination."

"The dictators have given the world a bitter and bloody demonstration that government tyranny is still the great enemy of free press and speech," Dewey declared. "Measures to suppress completely the freedom of the press were carried out by every one of the dictators as natural and essential steps to their success.

"The lesson is not without some application to our own country as has been indicated by some of the tendencies of the government in power, against which most editors and publishers have been watchful."

REP. LUCE SAYS F. D. R. 'PLAYED M'CARTHY TO HILLMAN'S BERGEN'

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29 (AP).—Rep. Luce [R., Conn.] said tonight in a speech before Pennsylvania Republican women that President Roosevelt "played Charlie McCarthy to Sidney Hillman's Bergen" in his Sept. 16 speech before the teamsters' union.

"The President's millions of radio listeners," she said, "brought hearts heavy with bereavement, hearts that still know long, agonized vigils, waiting and worrying . . . for news of their men on the battlefronts, hearts that yearned for comfort, for courage, for inspiration.

"And what did those Americans hear? Against a sound drop of raucous laughter, of goose gaggling and wolfish yowls, their President cheered and quipped and wisecracked. . . . The voice was the voice of the President. But the spirit was not the spirit of a man who claims to be running as commander in chief of a great nation engaged in a tragic war. . . . For that night, in spirit, Franklin Roosevelt played Charlie McCarthy to Sidney Hillman's Bergen."

Calling Gov. Dewey "the inevitable man," Rep. Luce said he will lead the way to a "people's peace."

L. J. Fenlon Heads Move to Win Vets for Roosevelt

Appointment of Lawrence J. Fenlon as chairman of a committee to organize war veterans to support President Roosevelt for reelection was announced yesterday by Mayor Kelly and Ald. Kells, who is Democratic state chairman. Fenlon's committee, which has quarters in the Morrison hotel, will work in Cook, Will, Du Page, and Lake counties.

APOLOGY BRINGS FREEDOM.

Carl Becich, 25, of 330 W. 30th pl., a former deputy sheriff, was freed on a disorderly conduct charge yesterday by Municipal Judge John R. McSweeney after he had apologized for kicking Policeman Arthur Murphy during a disturbance in a cafe at 1011 Rush st.

PAC FACES QUIZ BY HOUSE GROUP IN SESSION HERE

The midwestern activities of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee are expected to come under the scrutiny of the special house committee investigating campaign activities when it meets here on Oct. 7 for a three day hearing.

Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.] said plans were not "fully formed" when he announced in Washington yesterday that the committee would hold public hearings in Chicago on Oct. 7, 8, and 9, but Rep. Church [R., Ill.] who is a member of the committee, earlier announced he would urge the committee to investigate the PAC activities among the thousands of war workers in Chicago plants.

Raymond McKeough, former congressman who is now regional director in Chicago for the PAC, is expected to be one of the witnesses called at the Chicago hearing.

Chicago war workers who claim they have been put under pressure of various kinds by the PAC to obtain the $1 contributions from union members, to pass out campaign and Communistic literature, and to engage in other political activities are expected to be on the list of witnesses at the hearing.

New Deal Ruining Party, Mrs. J. W. Hunt Charges

The New Dealers are wrecking the Democratic party thru Hitler-like methods, the Rich Township Women's Republican club was told yesterday by Mrs. J. W. Hunt of Oswego, president of the Federation of Illinois Women's Republican Clubs. She spoke at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Howard D. Grant, Brassie av., Flossmoor. Mrs. Charles A. Ford is president of the Rich township organization, which has 75 charter members.

A CIGARET GIRL TRAILS SINATRA TO WHITE HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—A cigaret girl followed the swooning crooner to the White House for a publicity visit as President Roosevelt today continued to set aside the role of commander in chief to play host to visitors calculated to bring fourth term votes.

Irene Kuchta.

Miss "Gary Cigaret," who is Irene Kuchta, came to the executive mansion with her mother and Mayor Joseph Finnerty of Gary, Ind., Finnerty's wife, and Frank Hubbard, editor of a Gary paper which sponsored the contest naming Miss Kuchta to buy smokes for soldiers.

Finnerty is Democratic leader of the powerful Lake county steel district, Indiana's second largest voting district. It was understood the visit was arranged as a reward for his work in behalf of the fourth term.

Yesterday Frank Sinatra was brought to tea with the President by Democratic Chairman Hannegan. It was not clear whether Sinatra was brought to the White House by Hannegan to plug for the fourth or the fifth term, as Sinatra's bobby sock followers are in their teens, and without votes.

BALL SAYS HE'LL NOT CAMPAIGN FOR DEWEY NOW

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29 (AP).—Sen. Ball [R., Minn.], in a statement to the St. Paul Pioneer Press, tonight said that he will not campaign for Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, "at this time."

In his statement Minnesota's junior senator said:

"It is my deep conviction that the foreign policy of the United States, particularly our firm intention to join with our present allies in establishing a strong and effective international organization having real authority and power to maintain peace, is by far the greatest issue facing the American people in the Nov. 7 election. . . .

"I have read or listened to all of Gov. Dewey's speeches and statements to date. He has not yet convinced me that his own convictions on this issue are so strong that he would fight vigorously for a foreign policy which will offer real hope of preventing world War III. against the inevitable opposition to such a policy."

LOUISIANA FIGHT PERILS VOTES OF ITS SERVICE MEN

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29 [Special].—The revolt of Democratic Presidential electors who refuse to be pledged to vote for President Roosevelt, plus confusion within the Democratic state central committee, will prevent thousands of Louisiana service men from getting ballots in the November election, Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. disclosed today.

Other thousands in the fighting forces and many civilians temporarily in distant parts of the United States will receive ballots but may lose their votes because of inability to get them back in time to be counted, he indicated.

Political leaders said that only special action by the legislature before Nov. 7 to permit a count of service ballots after election day will remedy the military voting situation.

Time Runs Short.

Martin disclosed that the squabble among the Democratic electors, five of whom resigned rather than sign a state central committee plege that they support the Roosevelt-Truman ticket, has prevented him from fulfilling the legal requirement that military ballots be mailed to service men 30 days before the Nov. 7 general election.

Martin said the committee has instructed him to disregard its action of last March in nominating the 10 original electors and has delayed naming their successors, thereby leaving the state with no Presidential electors on the Democratic ticket. He said he based his stand on a 1940 state Supreme court ruling that the central committee has the right to rescind nominations any time before the ballots are printed.

Only 2 Back Ticket.

Only two of the original 10 electors indicated they would support the national ticket after the committee's "sign or else" ultimatum last Tuesday. Four resigned and three others indicated they would refuse to resign or sign the pledge. One elector had resigned prior to the committee's action.

Louisiana election laws provide for an immediate tally and report of voting results on election day, and the state attorney general has ruled that the short federal ballot cannot be used by Louisiana service men. Because of these two factors and the delay by the central committee in naming a new slate of electors, many ballots will not reach service men overseas and those which do reach distant voters will not get back in time for counting.

Denied Ballot Space.

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 29 (AP).—Florida's new anti-Roosevelt Independent party today lost its Supreme court suit to get space on the November general election ballot for its Presidential elector candidates.

The court held that a 1943 law under which the party sought to have its candidates certified would have been sufficient to qualify the electors if it had been shown that the party was "bound together in some kind of an organization and that for at least two consecutive Presidential elections they attempted but failed to elect a majority of the electors for President and Vice President."

Such an attempt was not shown by the party, the court said.

Knifing Among Democrats Seen in Downstate Fight

Ottawa, Ill., Sept. 29.—First evidence that Democratic candidates have started to knife each other in the campaign was disclosed today, when posters appeared in behalf of State's Atty. Courtney, Democratic nominee for governor, using the slogan, "Vote a Split Ticket."

The new Courtney slogan violated the tradition that party candidates should practice party regularity in public. The slogan appears on posters displayed in the business districts of Ottawa and elsewhere in La Salle county.

"It is a confession of Democratic weakness," said Harold Langer, Republican county chairman. "The Courtney men know they haven't a chance, but they are trying to pick up split votes at the expense of other members of the Democratic ticket."

Backed by a Contractor.

The posters are designed to give the impression that Courtney is supported by "independent Republicans of Illinois," with state headquarters in Ottawa. Republican leaders here describe it as a "phony" organization, financed by William Miller, a local manufacturer of playground equipment whose company has had large contracts from New Deal agencies for building projects.

"We've checked the records and can't find that Miller ever was a Republican," said Elmer Hitter of Ottawa, former state representative. "He has been the recipient of Democratic favors and this is the way he is paying a political debt."

Courtney and Sen. Lucas, Democratic candidate for reelection, have been touring the state with separate caravans. There is no knifing on the G. O. P. side. Green and all other Republicans are solidly backing the Republican ticket including Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee to replace Lucas.

Lucas Woos Republicans.

Lucas, however, also is using propaganda intimating he has independent support from Republicans. Campaign literature has been distributed giving the names of some "independents" as Lucas backers.

Investigation has shown that most of them are New Deal sympathizers, who never voted the Republican ticket, and that others have received profitable favors from war agencies.

Gov. Green and Lyons spoke before overflow crowds at Streator and La Salle Thursday night.

Labor union members pointed out that the Courtney poster did not bear the stamp of the International Alliance of Bill Posters, Billers, and Distributors.

HULL LACKING DETAILS OF YANK OUSTER BY REDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull were asked at their news conferences today about a report that soviet officials had ejected American and British military missions from Bulgaria.

Mr. Roosevelt said there were a lot of quasi-military missions in the Balkans and that he had not kept up on the matter. He referred inquirers to the state department, where Secretary Hull said he had no information on details of the reported incident, but that he understood any misunderstanding that may have arisen has been pretty well cleared up.

CROSS PREDICTS BIG G. O. P. GAINS IN STATE SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross today predicted that downstate successes in the election would give the Republicans a two-thirds majority of the state senate in the legislature. Such a majority would permit the enactment of emergency legislation without help from Democratic senators.

"Republicans will be elected to the senate in all downstate districts where there are contests," Cross said. "Some Republican gains are also expected in Cook county."

Senate seats being filled this year are in the even numbered districts and in some odd numbered districts where vacancies exist.

Gov. Bricker Shuns Politics When Naming Men to Jobs

["Without Benefit of Bossism" is the title of this article, the fourth in a series on the career of John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for Vice President. A previous series has told the story of Democratic Candidate Harry S. Truman.]

BY CARL WIEGMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Sept. 29.—John W. Bricker's theory of government, expressed in his actions as well as in his speeches, is that no super-man is needed to govern the American people. He believes they are capable of governing themselves and will not long submit to being led around by the nose either by a government official or a political boss.

At the same time, Bricker understands that government in a modern state is a highly complex affair, requiring the services of experts. He does not claim to be an expert in all fields of government, but he claims to have tried to appoint the best available specialists to run the departments of Ohio's government.

Control of Minor Jobs.

Even Democrats in Ohio concede that his major appointments have been uniformly good. In fact Republican leaders are more critical than the Democrats. They say Bricker has confined his appointments to a group of intimate friends, without much regard for the welfare of the party organization thruout the state. The party has control of nothing except minor jobs, these Republicans say.

Bricker's friends agree that he has not been too coöperative with the Republican party organization. On at least one occasion, the state Republican chairman, Ed D. Schorr of Columbus, did not hear of an important proposal from the governor's office until he read about it in the newspapers.

"The relationship between Bricker and Schorr is cordial, but not close," said a veteran Cleveland newspaper man, who has known the two men for many years.

Avoids Commitments.

"It's puzzling how Bricker gets away with his independence of Schorr," said another reporter, who has represented a leading press association in the Ohio capital.

Congressman George Bender of Cleveland, Republican chairman of Ohio's most populous county, said Bricker always has leaned over backward to avoid commitments to the party organization.

"The governor is not a master politician," Bender added.

It may be recalled that Sen. Truman, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, was plucked from obscurity and sent to the United States senate in 1934 by Master Politician Thomas J. Pendergast of the Kansas City political machine.

A Public Trust.

And when Pendergast was indicted for $443,550 income tax evasion in 1939, Truman described the indictment as "a purely political move." Previously, Truman had tried frantically to block the indictment. His loyalty to the boss never wavered.

Gov. Bricker operates on the theory that public money is a public trust, and he expects his appointees to hold the same view. Before he became governor, he said he would apply these six tests to each jobholder directly responsible to the governor: "Is the man honest? Is he unbiased? Is he a patriotic American? Does he know the job? Will he work? Can he say 'No' to wrong as well as 'Yes' to right?"

Cynics heard of the tests and said Bricker was handing out some more campaign hogwash. They changed their minds when they heard the names of the governor's appointees.

Now a General.

As highway director, Bricker named Robert S. Beightler, now a major general commanding a division in the Southwest Pacific. As director of the department of liquor control, the governor appointed Prof. Jacob B. Taylor, who had been head of the accountancy department at Ohio State university. As warden of the state penitentiary, Bricker named a Democrat, Brig. Gen. Frank D. Henderson of the Ohio national guard.

There were other similar appointees, who did their work quietly and efficiently, as public servants, not party servants. Bricker told each one of them: "This department is your baby. Run it."

During his six years as governor, several of Bricker's appointees have resigned to enter the army and to take other positions. When vacancies have occurred, Bricker almost invariably has promoted the next ranking man in the department, in order to encourage good men to make a career of public service.

Truman's Appointments.

It may be recalled that Harry Truman, as a United States senator, recommended the appointment of a Missouri WPA administrator who went to prison for trying to evade income taxes on $50,000 received from Boss Pendergast and John J. Pryor, the machine's contractor. Truman also sponsored the appointment of an ex-convict to be district WPA director of northwest Missouri, who later was jailed for pay roll padding.

There were scandals, too, during the administration of Democratic Gov. Martin L. Davey, Bricker's predecessor. These were exposed by a state senate committee of 31 Democrats and five Republicans, who closed their report by saying: "The folks of Ohio well know that neither the calling of names nor a million radio talks can ever turn wrong into right."

There has been no legislative investigation of Bricker's administration.

In his first inaugural address, Gov. Bricker summed up his views on government in these words:

"No superman or dictator can point the way to the better life we seek. It is a democratic task. The leadership must be, of the many, of people of high character and good purpose. Such leadership is undramatic but safe."

An anecdote of that inauguration also is illustrative of the man's character. He had forbidden the use of state money for the ceremony and had told the Columbus chamber of commerce not to spend any money it didn't have.

Several weeks later, Bricker learned that inauguration bills totaling $2,200 were unpaid. He went to a bank, borrowed $2,200 on his personal note, and paid the bills. The story got into the newspapers and 100 personal friends each contributed $22 to cancel the governor's note.

Truman Viewpoint

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 29 [Special].—Kansas City political observers today still were talking about a speech made here Tuesday night by Sen. Harry S. Truman, Democratic candidate for Vice President of the United States, in which he declared:

"I'm a Jackson county organization Democrat and I'm proud of that. That's the way I got to be a county judge, a senator, and the candidate for Vice President."

Truman made the talk before 350 American Federation of Labor delegates and business representatives at a meeting called to honor Phil M. Donnelly, Democratic candidate for governor. When Donnelly failed to appear, Truman took his place on the program.

He told the meeting that "organization" candidates provided the most efficient men to government, for they were men who understood human relations.

"A statesman is only a dead politician," he said. "I never want to be a statesman."

PAC LEVY A NEW POLL TAX, HOUSE INQUIRY IS TOLD

Ousted Unionist Tells How Reds Took Over.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—A Negro labor leader today told the house committee on un-American activities that Sidney Hillman, CIO political boss, is imposing a "poll tax" on American workers.

Dock J. Williams.

Dock J. Williams, 38, former president of local 25, United Packinghouse workers [CIO], in the Wilson & Co. plant, Chicago, thus characterized the dollar contributions which he said were forced from union members by the CIO political action committee to finance President Roosevelt's fourth term campaign.

Membership of 18,000.

Williams said he was ousted from office by Communists who took over the union after an organizing committee of 17, of whom he was one, had built up the organization to a total membership of 18,000 in Chicago.

When his local was assessed $1,500 for the PAC drive by Herbert March, regional director of the union, a well known Communist, according to committee records, Williams said he protested that the workers were divided in political sympathies and that it was unfair to force employes, who might favor the Republican candidate, to contribute to the New Deal ticket.

"Members of my people have been petitioning congress to pass laws against the poll tax in southern states," he said. "I felt it was silly to tax our workers in what was practically the same manner. I even suggested dividing up the money 50-50 for the Democrats and Republicans. March said I was reactionary."

Take Over Party.

The committee is inquiring into what Chairman Costello [D., Cal.] described as "an apparently successful attempt by Communists to take over the Democratic party" thru Hillman's CIO-PAC.

Members of the special committee investigating campaign expenditures again attended the hearing. Rep. Church [R., Ill.] has filed a charge of perjury against Hillman before this committee, of which he is a member, based upon evidence introduced by Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling that Hillman testified falsely last Aug. 28. The expenditures committee is expected to act on this charge when the committee on un-American activities concludes its hearings.

Williams, who saw overseas service in the last war, said he became active in CIO organizing activities in 1937. He was successively secretary, chief steward, vice president, and president of local 25, which he said had 1,500 dues paying members and a "paper membership" of about 3,400.

Communists Take Over.

"We fought to keep the Communists out of control but they moved in and took over in 1943 after the PAC was organized," he told the committee. "In addition to March, there was Phil Wheatman, international vice president, a Communist of the worst type who is not a citizen and was ordered deported."

Rep. Thomas [R., N. J.] instructed Stripling to obtain a report from Atty. Gen. Biddle concerning the failure to deport Wheatman.

"The Communists work on my people by saying they are discriminated against and if they join up, they'll control industry and there'll be no discrimination," Williams testified. "They teach hatred of industry and of congress. I contended that wasn't the answer to my people's problem.

Legality of Election.

"March started proceedings to oust me from office, attacking the legality of my reelection as president of the local last January. On March 20, Lewis J. Clark, international president, wrote me that I and my executive board of 13 had been expelled from office.

"Later, at a meeting in union headquarters, Clark wrote out an agreement for settlement of the argument but March heard about it, marched into the office, and tore up the agreement."

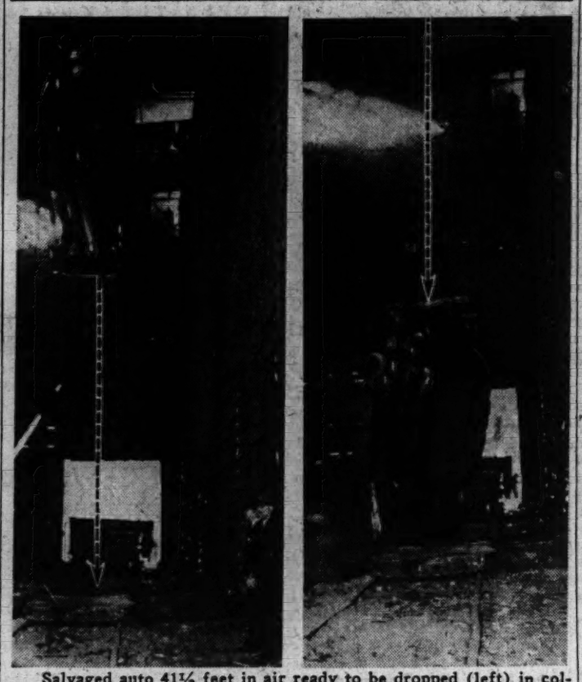
"How could March overrule the president?" the witness was asked.

"Clark is president in name only," was the reply. "March and the Communists control the executive board."

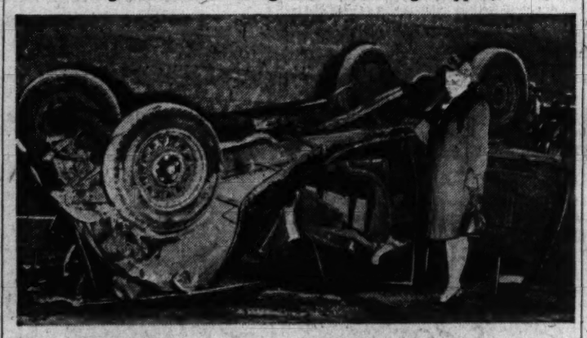
Williams said employes were taken from war work and put on PAC pay rolls, describing this as a general custom.

"That is in effect a form of campaign contribution not shown on the books of the candidate," remarked Costello.

What Happens in an Accident



Salvaged auto 41½ feet in air ready to be dropped (left) in collision test. In falling that distance it reaches speed of 35 miles an hour. At right the car is hitting slabs after being dropped.



Betty Jane Watson looking at the damage on the car after it was dropped. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

The National Safety council graphically proved yesterday that even at the war time speed limit of 35 miles an hour careful driving is necessary if an automobile and its occupants are to be protected against serious injury.

A car was hoisted 41½ feet, then allowed to fall on slabs of iron. The impact, council engineers had calculated, was equivalent to that of a car traveling 35 miles per hour hitting a solid object such as a viaduct abutment or a street car safety zone guard.

The experiment was performed at the south works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, 89th st. and Avenue O, under the council's auspices. Representatives of the council and of the army were among the observers. The car was from a junk yard.

CHARGES THREAT OF GERMAN RUIN COSTS U. S. LIVES

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—President Roosevelt today denounced as essentially untrue in the basic facts reports that there had been a violent cleavage in his cabinet over plans for destroying Germany in the post-war world.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reportedly had sold the President on a plan to reduce Germany to a farm nation by destroying all her industry. This plan was stiffly opposed by Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of State Hull.

Stimson contended Germany is the army's problem until her surrender. Hull maintained that the post-war treatment of Germany is in the province of the state department and not a treasury matter.

Tell of Hull Threat to Quit.

Altho the President minimized the story of a cabinet split, it was learned on high authority Hull had threatened to resign on the eve of the fourth term campaign if Morgenthau's revenge policy should be adopted.

While Stimson did not threaten resignation, it was said he was determined to bring the matter into the open unless Morgenthau were told to keep his fingers out of military matters. It was privately reported in the army the Morgenthau plan had delayed the end of the war at the cost of many casualties by stiffening enemy resistance.

According to informed sources the combined pressure of Stimson and Hull influenced Mr. Roosevelt to reject the Morgenthau plan. He chose, as the easiest way out, to deny the story, it was said.

F. D. R. Announces Policy.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt announced an eight point program to be followed by the foreign economic administration for application of economic controls in Germany "when military resistance of Nazi Germany is overcome." In a letter to Leo Crowley, FEA administrator, Mr. Roosevelt specifically put the job under state department direction, a move which was seen as further repudiation of the Morgenthau plan.

"You have been making studies from the economic standpoint of what should be done after the surrender of Germany to control its power and capacity to make war in the future," Mr. Roosevelt wrote.

"This work must be accelerated, and under the guidance of the department of state you should furnish assistance in work and when requested to do so in person by making available specialists to work with the military authorities, the foreign service, and such other American agencies and officials as participate with the united nations in seeing to it that Germany does not become a menace again to succeeding generations."

Covers Eight Points.

The policy directive to Crowley covered, in its eight points, export control, strategic and critical raw materials, preclusive buying, economic warfare, lend-lease, surplus property, control of the war making power of Germany, and reconstruction of future foreign trade. The program did not provide for the extension of lend-lease to Germany after the war, but to continuation of this aid to allies until the Nazi defeat.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized there is considerable confusion about the problem of post-war Germany because of the question whether the post-war period shall begin the day Germany folds up or shall be considered as a long range matter.

As he released the policy directive Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether it settled the reported split in his cabinet on the post-war policy toward Germany. He said the reported split was in the category of a newspaper story.

He was asked whether this answer meant there was no dispute. He replied in the affirmative, adding that every story which had come out about this situation had been essentially untrue in its basic facts. He said reporters might emphasize the adjective "basic."

He succeeds J. Louis Fifer, of Joliet. Lieutenant governors elected included Verne H. Olson, Des Plaines club; Hector La Rue, Edgebrook club; F. J. Jarrandt, Portage Park club; Charles Leindecker, Hyde Park club, John H. Wood, Cicero club, and Timothy Lehmann, Elmhurst club. More than 500 Kiwanians from 132 clubs attended the meeting.

ENGINEERS TELL A PLAN TO PULL NAZI WAR FANGS

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—The presidents of five national engineering societies, whose collective memberships provided the technical guidance in America's war mobilization, today presented a four point program designed to take the ability to wage war out of Germany's industrial economy.

The program, under consideration for some months, was presented at this time as a counter to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's plan to strip German industry and leave the country only agriculture.

The Morgenthau proposals, now reported sidetracked, would penalize "not only the owners of the materials destroyed, but the world as a whole," the engineering societies' executives held in a signed statement.

Represent 75,000 Engineers.

The presidents are Malcoln Pirnie, American Society of Civil Engineers; Chester A. Fulton, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers; Robert M. Gates, American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Charles A. Powel, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and George G. Brown, American Institute of Chemical Engineers. They were said to represent memberships totaling 75,000 engineers.

Instead of "indiscriminate destruction" the group proposed "selective restriction and control of German industry." They would strip Germany of her synthetic oil capacity, eliminate the bulk of her synthetic nitrogen plant capacity, eliminate 50 per cent of her steel making capacity, and eliminate her aircraft plants.

Would Curtail Aluminum.

To remove the possible groundwork for an aircraft industry, the engineers suggested that aluminum and aluminum plants be destroyed and importation of aluminum ingots reduced to pre-war needs. Importation of aluminum ores would be banned.

As a further step toward the curtailment of German war production, it was recommended that the ownership or management of nitrogen and steel production plants be transferred to allied hands.

The engineers said the measures they recommended would prevent the rearmament of Germany, but would make it possible for the nation to meet its peace time needs and thereby prevent it from becoming "a drag on the economy of all Europe and a breeder of future wars."

They said their aims of war prevention "should not be confused" with the appropriate punishment of Germany or long term international arrangements made at the peace conference.

TRUCK AND GOODS STOLEN.

A truck loaded with $4,000 worth of steel rope, flying suits, underwear, and other goods was stolen Thursday night from the loading platform of the Mueller Transportation company, 607 W. 25th st., the manager, Otto Carlson, reported yesterday to police.

STALIN EAGER TO MEET F. D. R. AND CHURCHILL AGAIN, MOSCOW HEARS

MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP).—Premier Stalin will be just as glad to meet again with President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill as they will be to see him, it was reported on good authority here today.

Churchill's call yesterday for a second meeting of the big three to plan final phases of the European war and to consider problems of the peace brought a favorable response from the Russian people, but there was no official intimation as to when or where the conference would take place.

It was felt here that a second meeting might effect coördination of the three high commands, lay the groundwork for peace and decide what to do with a defeated Germany.

REDS ATTEMPT TO EMBARRASS 83 FOES IN FACTORY

The "Hitler salute" and other forms of ridicule are being used in an effort to embarrass the 83 anti-communist employes of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company, 5600 Roosevelt rd., who have withdrawn from membership in the communist dominated United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers' union [CIO], it was learned yesterday. Ernest De Maio, the CIO international union's vice president and head of the Chicago area CIO political action activities, is one of the chief spokesmen for the Communist party within the CIO and is a well known communist sympathizer.

The 83 anti-Communists are seeking the return of dues and initiation fees paid to the CIO union because, they aver, they were enrolled by fraud. "We believed we had joined a labor union, but we found instead that we had become part of a Communist-New Deal affiliate," they said.

Thruout the plant yesterday, Communist controled union members made derogatory remarks to the women war workers who had joined with the men in rescinding their union affiliation.

CHINESE DEMAND WAR POWER FOR GLOBAL POLICE

In contrast to their argument, Koo spoke plainly of an international authority supreme over any one nation.

"As the intercourse between peoples grows in complexity, and the common interests of nations multiply and become more varied," he said, "principles and rules of conduct for their guidance need elucidation, revision, and supplementation. For such work I can think of no more authoritative or better qualified body than the proposed new institution."

Brings in Social Problems.

Asserting that the security organization should supervise world affairs, he said:

"It is our belief that the new organization should also concern itself in the study and solution of economic and social problems of international importance. It should be able to recommend measures for adoption by member states, and should also play a central role in the directing and coördinating of international agencies devoted to such purposes."

Koo did not discuss the Russians, who have just departed from the conference, now in its sixth week. The Russian phase began Aug. 21 and ended yesterday.

See Veiled Protest.

Many said they saw a protest against the neglect of the Japanese war and the bounteous shipment of lend-lease goods to Russia in Koo's assertion that the Chinese are hoping for the establishment of an international authority "because our appeals and warnings in the past did not always meet with the response they deserved."

The Chinese were unable to join the conference until the Russians left because of the possibility that the soviet delegation might be embarrassed.

MINERS CHARGE MANIPULATION OF WLB BY F. D. R.

Policy Dictation for Own Benefit Claimed.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—The Roosevelt administration is accused of manipulating the war labor board for the benefit of the New Deal in the October issue of the United Mine Workers' Journal, to be published tomorrow.

The article, which praises Gov. Dewey for his promise to return administration of labor laws to the people, credits Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau, with obtaining definite evidence that the Roosevelt forces dictated WLB decisions.

Indebted for Story.

Referring to a story from Portland, Ore., which appeared under Mr. Henning's name in THE TRIBUNE last Sunday, the Journal says:

"We are indebted to Arthur Sears Henning of The Chicago Tribune Press Service for the following interview with Wayne L. Morse, ex-public member of the war labor board, in which Morse confesses publicly that the Roosevelt administration manipulated its political weight and the government war agencies to deny American coal miners a justified wage increase:

"'Gov. Dewey was right when he said that political influences entered into WLB decisions. Outstanding examples of the political manipulation of the board's decisions were the United Mine Workers' coal case and the west coast aircraft case.

Opinion Pre-Written.

"In the aircraft case, I found on returning to Washington that the board's opinion had been written before the board even considered the case. Four officials were involved in the political maneuvering in this case.'

"There it is," the Journal comments on Morse's statement. "The enforcement officer of WLB, who served all during the 1943 coal wage negotiations, confesses publicly that the mine workers were given a raw deal, gypped, and crucified.

"Then Morse revealed the inside of the railway wage controversy. Of this he said:

"'Great and unjustifiable damage was done to railroad labor because of the lack of a judicial approach by the board to its war time problems. The railroad unions did not want to strike. They were forced to take the steps they did in order to bring the case to a final determination.

Watson "Forgot."

"'The President told his secretary, Gen. [Edwin M.] Watson, that he approved a 7 cent increase in the rail case, but Watson forgot to pass the word along to Fred Vinson, the director of economic stabilization, until after Vinson had given his decision denying the raise.'

"There are many who have their doubts about whether Watson was told and failed to act," the Journal continued.

Morse is the Republican nominee for senator from Oregon.

Recalling President Roosevelt's radio speech of last Saturday night, the Journal said:

"Remember, President Roosevelt was talking to the teamsters' union, with which are affiliated teamsters, truckers, chauffeurs, and a miscellany horde. During the entire war period, not a single train has been stalled due to an inadequate supply of coal.

"How many times have you read of regional truck drivers' strikes lasting a week, 10 days, or two weeks in Atlanta, Memphis, St. Louis and all points east, west, north, and south—as well as bus tie-ups?

"Before a delegation of 700 of these men, President Roosevelt chose to open his campaign and again slur the United Mine Workers."

U. S. Charges $300,000 Dime Flower Fraud; Indicts Three

This is one of the Pike brothers' plants.

Three brothers operating a nursery in St. Charles, Kane county, have defrauded 1,500,000 flower lovers out of $300,000 in dimes thru a scheme of selling "surprise packages" of seeds by mail, United States Atty. Woll charged yesterday. The brothers are Silas, Ernest, and Charles Pike, owners of the Sunnyside Gardens, and most of their victims are women, the district attorney said.

The Pikes were indicted by a federal grand jury before Federal Judge John P. Barnes on 23 counts charging them with using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Thousands of Complaints.

Woll and Richard J. Finn, assistant prosecutor who investigated the case, said thousands of complaints had been received by the postoffice department.

Victims, the prosecutors said, received cards addressed to "Dear Flower Lover," and offering six silk handkerchiefs, 25 beautiful flower bulbs, a seed catalog, and a $1 surprise package of flower seeds for two dimes and eight penny postcards addressed with the names of other flower lovers.

From February to July, it was charged, the Pikes mailed three million cards, and received a response of one and one-half million orders, each accompanied by two dimes fitted into slots on a penny postcard.

The Pikes' promotional offer said that orders placed within two days would be rewarded with two beautiful house plants, in addition to the handkerchiefs, bulbs, catalog, and a surprise package.

Receive Withered Plants.

Most of the "customers" complained they did not receive the handkerchiefs, bulbs, catalog, or surprise package of flower seeds. Some received house plants, which they said were withered.

After several weeks, some customers received their surprise package, which consisted of four small envelopes with a few seeds, Woll said. Some of the seed was identified as cactus. Customers who wrote to the Pikes asking for the rest of their order sometimes received replies that the war interfered with filling all requests, it was charged, but that for an additional $2 for tulip bulbs they would have a "golden opportunity" of receiving premiums of silk handkerchiefs.

MORMON BISHOP SAYS HE FOUGHT MARRIAGE CULT

Tried to Keep Youth Out of It, He Asserts.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 29 (AP).—An elderly retired Latter Day Saints [Mormon] church bishop today said he was given an assignment as a "special missionary to try to save young people from the clutches of this cult."

Casper J. Fetzer.

His testimony at the District court trial of 32 members of the "fundamentalist" cult on charges of conspiring to teach and practice polygamy came a day after a girl, 17, told of being "sealed" in "celestial marriage" at the age of 14 to a cultist.

The retired bishop, gray haired Casper J. Fetzer of Salt Lake City, said he had been given his assignment by David O. McKay, second counselor to Heber J. Grant, Mormon church president, in the early spring of 1942.

Visits Many Homes.

He told of visiting many homes of Mormons as well as of "fundamentalists."

"Weren't you instructed," asked Defense Atty. Claude T. Barnes, "to disclose evidence to officers of the law?"

"No, sir," Fetzer replied. "I was a missionary."

"Fundamentalist" cult members contend they are following original Mormon doctrine which included belief in polygamy and refuse to recognize the 1890 church manifesto which outlawed plural marriages.

Seeks Dismissal.

Barnes said he would submit motions Monday asking dismissal of the charges.

The girl who told yesterday of her "marriage," pretty Mrs. Alice Caldwell, said today she did not engage in sexual intercourse with Ross Wesley LeBaron, cult member to whom she said she was "sealed."

LeBaron, a defendant, and she spent several hours together after their canyon "marriage," Mrs. Caldwell said.

"No sexual intercourse took place between you and LeBaron during the time you told about yesterday, did it?" Barnes asked her.

"No, sir," the girl replied.

CUTE POSTMAN IS ABSOLVED IN WAR WORK ROW

A request of Mailman Eugene J. Wiley, 42, that he be given a new route in the Hyde Park postal district, beginning Monday, has been granted, it was learned yesterday. Wiley, who was involved in a labor dispute when six women employes quit their jobs at the Diamond Tool company, 938 E. 41st st., has been absolved of all charges against him, Postmaster Kruetgen announced.

Wiley's troubles grew out of charges made by Sheldon Booth, owner of the company, that a "handsome postman's long conversations" with the women employes interfered with war production. The women denied Booth's assertion.

The women said Wiley not only had made extra deliveries to Booth at the plant, but brought them mail from their husbands who were overseas, instead of delivering it to their homes. Wiley's record during the seven years he has been a mailman "is full of merits, without one demerit," Kruetgen said.

SOCIETY MATRON TELLS OF DINING WITH GUN VICTIM

Salinas, Cal., Sept. 29 [Special].—The wining and dining of Jay Lovett, 19, on the last evening of his life was related to a murder trial jury today by Mrs. Nancy Linde, one of two neighbor society women who allegedly vied for the friendship of the handsome and husky young farmhand.

Red haired and petite, Mrs. Linde, testified for the state and against the other society matron, blonde and pretty Mrs. Frances Andrews, 37 year old oil heiress, who is charged with killing Jay in a fit of jealousy. The defense contends he committed suicide with Mrs. Andrews' pistol after a late visit at her home.

The victim worked occasionally at the Carmel valley ranches of both women. Mrs. Andrews' husband is in the army and Mrs. Linde's husband is a physician in San Francisco. The state charges that Mrs. Andrews became enraged because Jay spurned a dinner engagement with her in order to dine with Mrs. Linde.

Tells of Dinner Date.

"Did you know Jay Lovett in his life time?" District Atty. Anthony Brazil asked Mrs. Linde, who, according to other witnesses, Mrs. Andrews referred to as "that redhead." In a low voice the physician's wife replied:

"I'm afraid I did."

She then said she had known Jay about two months, that she had seen him on July 14, the day before his death, and had asked him to come to her home to fix some electrical wiring. She related that she asked him to come to dinner the following night and he agreed.

Had Highball and Wine.

Jay arrived at Mrs. Linde's country house at 7 p. m. and had a highball before dinner. During the meal he drank wine, his hostess recalled. They were still at dinner at 9 p. m. when there was an interruption. The telephone rang and a woman's voice asked for Jay, Mrs. Linde testified.

"When he came back he had perspiration on his face and seemed changed," Mrs. Linde told the jury. "He ate very little dinner after the phone call.

She said Jay remarked, "That was Mrs. Andrews," but this statement was ordered stricken.

A few minutes later a car drove into her driveway. Jay told her he would see her tomorrow, then went out and was driven rapidly away, Mrs. Linde testified.

Mrs. Andrews has said she called for the young man at the Linde home to help her "tend a sick calf." She said he left her place shortly before 11 p. m., that she heard a shot a few minutes later, that she investigated, and found him lying beside the road mortally wounded. Her pistol lay beside him.

Mrs. Linde's husband, Dr. Frederick Linde, gray haired and professional looking, was on the stand briefly to tell of having seen Jay frequently and to have talked with him about his future. He tersely answered "Yes" to Brazil's question of whether Jay wasn't "just another nice neighbor's boy."

Tells of Embrace.

Mrs. Irene Ball, another Carmel valley society woman, testified that she once saw Mrs. Andrews embraced by Jay in a cocktail lounge and that the defendant "sort of snuggled up to him."

Jay's mother, Mrs. Luther Lovett, whose husband is a sharecropper, testified late yesterday that when she was en route to the scene of her boy's death, having been called for by Mrs. Andrews, she remarked to the woman now on trial:

"Why didn't you leave the child alone? He was trying to break away from you."

3 CHARGES OF SEX OFFENSES DENIED BY CIO CHIEF STEWARD

Howard McGarvey, 36, of 6129 S. Rockwell st., a chief steward of the CIO United Automobile Workers' union at the Studebaker corporation, pleaded not guilty to three charges of sex offenses yesterday when he appeared before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court.

A preliminary hearing was set for next Friday before Justice Peter Schwaba when the date for trial will be set.

McGarvey was indicted on two charges of crimes against nature involving alleged offenses against a 14 year old boy. The other indictment charged rape and was based on the complaint of Mrs. Helen Antoni, 18, of 3131 W. 131st st. that McGarvey forced her, at the point of a knife, to accompany him to his rooms, where she was subjected to unnatural abuses and raped.

2 Children Asphyxiated; 3d Is Overcome by Fumes

Dolores Schrein, 14, of 2261 S. Kildare av., and Penny Ryba, 2, were found asphyxiated by illuminating gas early today in the younger child's home at 1248 S. Pulaski rd. Policemen from the Fillmore st. station said a third child, overcome by the fumes, was removed to a hospital. The cause was not learned immediately.

VICTIM IS SOUGHT AFTER GAMBLING CASINO SHOOTING

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 29 [Special].—Reports that an unidentified man was shot in the crowded dining room of the Club Royal gambling casino near here early this morning and his body dragged out by two men and whisked away in an automobile were being investigated today by St. Clair county sheriff's officials.

Deputy Sheriffs Elmer Lacquet and George Boos answered an anonymous call telling of a shooting at the club, two miles west of here. They said they found bloodstains on the floor and bullet holes in the floor and east wall of the dining room.

The deputies said the club, owned by Thomas Barry of Belleville, was almost deserted when they arrived. They said Herbert Lawler, bartender, told them he heard a commotion in the dining room about 3 a. m., followed by what sounded like a shot. "Everybody got out of the place," he was quoted as saying, "and later I found a pool of blood under one of the dining room tables."

Relates Shooting Episode.

Richard Everett, a reporter of the St. Louis [Mo.] Star-Times, who had been assigned three days ago to investigate gambling in the county, said he was in a dimly lighted entrance off the club dining room about 2:10 a. m., waiting for a taxi, when he heard a single shot, followed by three more after a short pause. He said he saw, thru the smoky haze and dim light, the stooped form of a man who appeared to be shooting and then saw the body of a man fall at the feet of a dice girl.

Everett said two husky men came from the near-by barroom, grabbed the victim by the shoulders, and dragged him thru the entrance a few feet from Everett. He said one of the men gave him a sinister look as they disappeared.

The reporter said the men dragged the body across a near-by parking lot and three cars drove away, two toward Belleville and one toward East St. Louis. He took down the license numbers of two of the cars, which were being checked by deputies.

Ex-Convict Arrives.

The deputies said that while they were investigating, Monroe [Blackie] Armes, ex-convict and former member of the old Shelton gang, drove up to the club. He contended he had stopped at the club for a drink on the way to his home in Herrin.

East St. Louis police said they believed the shooting may have been an outbreak of a gang war between the Shelton gang of prohibition days and the Armes gang.

Discovery of a two-tooth dental bridge outside the club led to the belief it might have been lost by the victim or one of his assailants and may aid police in solution of the case. Police said they were hunting for one man known by them to have such a bridge.

Clerk Convicted of Killing Wife of His Employer

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 29 (AP).—Jan Sarazzawski, 38, a shipping clerk, was convicted by a Superior court jury today of first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Marion Berger, 40, the wife of Sarazzawski's employer in a war plant. The death sentence is mandatory should Sarazzawski be found sane. Mrs. Berger's battered body was washed up on the shore of the Pacific ocean near here last May.

MATE OF SLAIN BRIDE KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29 (AP).—The 13th naval district today announced that Lt. Richard F. James, whose bride was slain in the "lower 13" Pullman car murder case in Oregon a year ago last January, was killed yesterday in the crash of his training plane, which caught fire at 15,000 feet and crashed 20 miles northwest of Pasco, Wash. He was the son of Mrs. Lucille Floyd James, Nassawadox, Va.

His bride, Martha Virginia James, 21, formerly of Norfolk, Va., was killed by a man who entered her berth and cut her throat shortly after 4 a. m. Jan. 23, 1943, as she was en route from Seattle to San Diego, Cal.

NAZIS BLOW UP APPROACHES TO ARNHEM BRIDGE

Driven Back Over Rhine After Night Attack.

Clairegoutte, 11 miles west of Belfort.

They were reported within sight of the gap, which begins at Belfort and stretches for 15 miles eastward between the Vosges peaks on the north and the Alps on the south. The German border of the Rhine and the Black forest are 30 miles east of Belfort.

Close In on Passes.

Fifteen miles north of Belfort lies the first of four key passes thru the Vosges, that of Bussang, and 7th army units were no more than 10 miles southwest of it after capturing the town of Servance.

Northward are three other passes, Schluct, Bonhomme, and Salles, and it was on the approaches to Salles that some of the most intense fighting was raging.

Closing in on the highway center of Rambervillers, 32 miles southeast of Nancy, the 7th in a three mile lunge captured the villages of Bult and Destord, less than four miles to the south.

Americans moving up on the Schluct pass ran into an ambush south of Remiremont, 20 miles to the west.

Bag Tanks in Forest.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army, smashing back six successive enemy counter-blows, gained two significant successes on the old Lorraine battlefields of the first World war before action was mired in the mud of the Nancy-Metz front.

Most of the 82 enemy tanks knocked out yesterday fell to allied gunners and bombers in the forest of Parroy, 15 to 20 miles east of Nancy. Then the doughboys fought on thru the trees and underbrush and seized high ground in the forest.

The Germans, fighting to blunt this American thrust toward the industrial basin of the Saar, threw in four major counter-attacks in the areas of Pettoncourt, Bezange, and Coincourt, 13 to 20 miles northeast and east of Nancy.

Rout Foe from Village.

To the north, Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, in a one mile advance, routed the enemy from the Dutch village of Echterbosch on the German border 20 miles north of the gateway fortress of Aachen.

There was no news of fresh gains around Hurtgen, 14 miles southeast of Aachen, but well to the south other 1st army forces were on the German frontier at another point after taking the Luxemburg border town of Remich, 20 miles south of the first penetrations into Germany at Trier.

Pilots from the hundreds of fighters and fighter-bombers raking enemy lines reported that German guns and reinforcements were streaming across the Rhine toward Holland, the first heavy westward movement of supplies spotted in weeks.

Fly Thru Rain.

Flying thru rain and low clouds which grounded heavy bombers, American and British medium bombers attacked the Siegfried line and enemy road and rail channels. Hundreds of tons of bombs fell on the German frontier town of Geldern, thru which both troops and supplies have been funnelled into the growing battle of Holland.

The Germans were continuing to send up the Luftwaffe in strength to attack allied troops in the Nijmegen and Arnhem areas, and to attempt bombing of the Nijmegen bridge, but one R. A. F. group alone reported 101 enemy planes destroyed and 69 others probably destroyed or damaged in five days.

The dragon tooth defenses of the Siegfried line to the south near Webenhein, 20 miles east of Saarbrucken also were attacked as was the freight yard at Saarbrucken.

Below Arnhem the British were widening their Dutch corridor, warding off three blows at the Nijmegen bridge, and were increasing to 20 miles their hold on the west bank of the Maas [Meuse] river facing Germany.

Their holdings along the river south of the Siegfried line terminal of Kleve placed them within 11 miles of that anchor, and in position to drive across the river toward Germany's industrial Ruhr valley.

Broadening the Nijmegen corridor on the west, the British captured Best, six miles northwest of their base at Eindhoven, but the Germans still were dug in on the edge of the town along the railroad.

British forces secured the Nijmegen crossing on the west by clearing out the Germans between the Maas and Waal Rhine. The Germans were fighting hard around Oss, 14 miles southwest of Nijmegen, however, trying to protect the escape route for the Germans sealed off west of the Dutch corridor.

British and Canadians coming up from the southwest advanced about three miles west of Turnhout and captured Oostbrecht, across the Turnhout-Arnhem canal along which the German rearguards are protecting their northward movement.

Canadians on the French coast, after winning a foothold across the moat ringing Calais, granted the Germans a 24 hour armistice ending at noon Saturday to permit the evacuation of civilians before the final assault.

Twelve miles southwest the Canadians seized all the cross channel guns which had been shelling Dover from Cap Gris Nez. Other big guns may remain in coastal pockets, however.

In rounding up 200 prisoners on the cape, the Canadians bagged another high ranking German officer, a Gen. Schilling, who commanded the enemy on Cap Gris Nez.

FLYING BOMB STRIKES BRITISH TENEMENT; 3 KILLED AND 12 HURT

LONDON, Sept. 30 [Saturday]—(AP).—A flying bomb crashed atop a tenement house in a residential district of southern England today, killing at least three persons and injuring a dozen others. The Germans loosed two attacks on southern counties, including the London area, during the night.

With their ground robot roosts wrested from them along the channel coast, the Germans have been launching the buzz bombs from aircraft over the North sea. Two robot carrying Heinkels were shot down yesterday.

Ninth air force headquarters, meanwhile, disclosed that allied fighter planes had shot down 1,094 of the 8,095 robot bombs launched against England between June 12 and Sept. 9. Of the total, 5,409 crossed the channel, 2,468 entered the greater London area, and 309 fell in southern England. Anti-aircraft destroyed 1,551 and barrage balloons exploded 279. Casualties included 5,817 killed and 1,785 injured seriously.

Illinois Colonel Gets Nazi Pistol for Part in Roundup

AN ADVANCED AIR FORCE HDQ., France, (AP).—The aerial roundup which helped bring about the surrender of 20,000 Germans Sept. 16 has resulted in an unexpected reward for unit commanders of the 19th tactical air force from Brig. Gen. Otto P. Weyland, commandant. Among the commanders who received a German automatic pistol selected from the hundreds turned in by the enemy officers, was Col. Cecil L. Wells, Edwardsville, Ill.

TELLS 8 DAYS OF NIGHTMARE WAR INSIDE ARNHEM

WITH THE BRITISH 2D ARMY, Sept. 29 (AP).—"We never lost hope. . . ." With these four words the valiant men of Arnhem epitomized the story of a nightmare ordeal across the Rhine, where they were cut off for eight days and nights under fire of German tanks, artillery, mortars, and machine guns.

"The Germans wouldn't come out and fight," said Capt. David Allsop of Bakewell, Derbyshire, a member of the British 1st air borne reconnaissance squadron, who landed with the first gliders at 1:40 a. m., Sept. 17, six miles west of Arnhem.

"We glided down onto a potato field and it was just like an exercise back in England except for a few odd bits of flak," said Allsop. "But two hours later the run began when we made our first contact with Germans on reconnaissance patrol at Wolfheeze Station. From there on it got rougher and rougher.

Infantry Reaches Town.

"The second day we tried to get into Arnhem. We, in jeeps, ran into heavy machine gun fire and had to turn back, but our infantry got into town. On the third day we acted as a screening force on the west flank and on the fifth day it really got sticky. The Germans shelled and mortared us without let-up and snipers were a nuisance, too, altho we dealt with them pretty well.

"I didn't see any flame throwing tanks but I did see plenty of self propelled guns. German SS [Elite guard] units came up at dusk every night and pumped away at us for 20 minutes from a range of about 300 yards.

"Our ammunition shortage began to get very serious Friday but we heard help was coming up at last. But it never came. The last four days we were so pinned down by close range fire from Germans hidden in near-by woods, and by shell and mortar bursts, that we couldn't bury the dead, either our own or the Germans'. The Boche by now was systematically destroying houses where our chaps were hiding one by one. They kept slinging mortars at us until they fell like rain.

Like Bewildering Nightmare.

"Packed in a tight perimeter, it was positively hell—far worse than we experienced at Taranto, Italy. You lost men all around you. You felt lost in a bewildering nightmare. You wondered what was happening to the relieving forces—and that was really hard to bear."

Allsop said he received orders to evacuate across the Rhine at 3 p. m., Monday, but his own trench was under such incessant machine gun fire that he had to wait until night to pass the word among his men. Then, under cover of darkness, he crawled from trench to trench and told his men, "We are withdrawing. Only personal weapons and Bren guns will be taken. Nothing else. Silence is essential."

The troops received the order in complete silence, Allsop said. "As we began the march to the river our guns on the opposite side laid down an absolutely magnificent barrage, covering our withdrawal. It was so terrific that Boche mortars, which were falling all around, sounded like Christmas cracklers. Amid all that racket I felt like a bloody fool, then, at my order for complete silence.

"We left our position at 8 p. m., Monday and embarked in outboard motor boats across the Rhine at 11 p. m. When we got across the men let go their emotions. I guess we all said: 'Well, we made it!'"

Commander Back Home.

AT AN R. A. F. BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 29 (AP).—Maj. Gen. R. E. Urquhart, commander of the British 1st air borne division, and six glider pilots who fought with him in the Arnhem pocket, were flown back here today in a plane piloted by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams of Los Angeles.

Headquarters denied a German radio report that Acting Lt. Gen. F. A. M. Browning, Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's deputy in command, had been captured.

NELSON AND GENERAL FROM CHINA TO TALK IN CHICAGO ON OCT. 9

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, and Gen. Shang Chen, chief of the Chinese military mission to the United States, will speak Oct. 9 in Orchestra hall before a meeting marking the 33d anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic.

Gen. Shang Chen.

Nelson, who recently returned from a vitsit to China, has informed J. M. Cleary, Chicago chairman of United China relief, that he will tell of that visit. Gen. Shang Chen is considered China's foremost soldier-diplomat. He attended the Cairo conference.

The Oct. 9 meeting is sponsored by the American Friends of China, the Institute of Pacific Relations, the Chinese Community of Chicago, the Community and War fund, and United China relief. Tickets will go on sale at Orchestra hall today.

EX-CONVICT HELD IN MICHIGAN CITY MURDER INQUIRY

A 24 year old Elkhart [Ind.] ex-convict is being held as a suspect in the slaying last Sunday of Harry S. Akchevoun, 48, of Joliet, in the Michigan City home of George Nahas, reputed gambling czar, Police Chief Joseph Wolf of Michigan City disclosed last night.

A gambling feud was at first believed to have been the cause, but yesterday police theorized the three gunmen who fired at Nahas and Akchevoun when they entered Nahas' home had planned a holdup. Akchevoun formerly was Nahas' bodyguard.

The ex-convict, whose name was withheld pending investigation, recently was released from the Pendleton reformatory after serving a sentence for burglary. Policemen questioned a woman friend of the ex-convict, but did not hold her.

COOPER GIVES HIS VERSION OF PARTY IN HOTEL

picture appearance. He said he now is 22. He said he was born in Los Angeles, Cal., that his name is John Cooper Jr., and that he entered the navy under the name of Jack Cooper.

The only emotion the witness showed during his appearance on the stand was when he related that his mother died three years ago. He choked up and was unable to speak for several moments. Defense Atty. Doran made a motion for a judgment in favor of the three defendants but he was overruled by Referee Doyle.

15 Year Old Testifies.

When the hearing was adjourned because of the lateness of the hour Referee Doyle announced that Cooper would resume his testimony at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The first witness was the 15 year old girl who had to be brought into court this morning on an attachment issued after her doctor said she had a cold.

Questioned by John Montgomery, deputy prosecutor, the girl said she met her 16 year old friend downtown the evening of July 22 and after stopping at several restaurants and finding them crowded they went to another place, where they were accosted by Pauline Frederick, who invited them to go to a party.

Pretty Far Along.

The girl admitted having had "one scotch and soda, one scotch and ginger ale, a straight bourbon, and a bottle of beer" at the Brandywine room in the hotel where the drinking party took place.

"Would you say you were intoxicated?" asked Montgomery.

The witness puckered up her face and answered, "Mm-hmn." Later she admitted she was "pretty far along." Then she was asked if she "had any drinks upstairs."

"Yes, Jackie had a bottle," she replied. "He took a drink out of it and handed it to me."

"Did you drink out of the bottle?" Montgomery asked.

"Certainly," she shot back.

Questioned About Seduction.

During the questioning regarding her seduction, the girl sat with her hand over her eyes and told how Bender helped her undress and admitted having immoral relations with him.

The 16 year old girl substantiated the other girl's testimony concerning their activities up to about 11 o'clock that night when she took the last bus home after trying unsuccessfully to get the younger girl to go home also.

Cooper, who created the role of "Skippy" in the movies, was a star before he was 6 and went on to amass a fortune, but in court today he had the role of a serious young sailor who faces, under the Indiana statute, a $500 fine or six months imprisonment, or both, if found guilty. His last picture was "Where Are Your Children?" It concerned juvenile delinquency.

AIR LINE'S ACTION REVIVES TALK OF LAKE FRONT PORT

Selection of Chicago as a central port for international air traffic by Pan-American World Airways aroused fresh interest here yesterday in a proposal that a new airport be created on the lake front adjacent to the loop.

Mayor Kelly, who had committed the city earlier this week to an agreement with air lines to construct a $1,750,000 terminal at Chicago airport, said plans for a lake airport will be "looked into again." He said, however, he believed Chicago airport will be capable of handling air traffic for at least 10 years after the war. Some aviation experts have predicted it will be inadequate after five years.

Mayor Kelly said he was pleased to see the news in THE TRIBUNE yesterday that Pan-American World Airways had applied to the civil aeronautics board for designation of Chicago as the terminal of its trans-Atlantic service.

STEAL TRUCK OF DEXTROSE.

A truck loaded with 4,500 pounds of sugar dextrose, worth $500, was stolen from the East End Cartage company garage at 403 E. Erie st., Anthony Digaeti, garage manager, reported to Chicago av. police yesterday.

TELL HOW ARMY MAKES FRENCH RAILROADS RUN

Already Carry More to Front than Trucks.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 29.—How United States railways in Europe already are hauling 10,000 tons of war material daily on routes from Cherbourg and elsewhere to our fighting men east of Paris was told today by key men in the organization which, according to army experts, is writing new pages in the history of transportation.

The story was told by Maj. Gen. Frank S. Ross, chief of transportation for the United States army in the European theater of operations; Brig. Gen. Clarence L. Burpee, commanding the 2d military railway service of Jacksonville, Fla., trainmaster and superintendent of the Atlantic Coast Line; Lt. Col. Fay L. King, former district manager and master mechanic for the Milwaukee railroad, now assistant general manager of the equipment department here; Lt. Col. Louis G. Jamisson, formerly night train master for the Pennsylvania lines, and Lt. Col. Frederick W. Blitz, formerly engineer of maintenance of right of way for the Reading railroad, and others.

Bombers Wrecked Roads.

These man are directing the work of putting back into working conditions the railways which had been wrecked by allied bombers. Their railroad battalions are made up largely of troops who were railroad men before entering the army.

When American railway engineers arrived in Normandy it was estimated France already had lost 60 per cent of her locomotives thru bombing, not counting 400 of their best locomotives which the Germans were said to have taken to Germany. Twenty-six per cent of the rail lines from Paris were destroyed and the most important bridges gone. A single key switchyard in France was cluttered with the charred, rusting junk of 1,300 locomotives and freight cars but the tracks were repaired and trains got thru the same day the engineers reached this spot.

Ten Regiments Busy.

Ten regiments consisting of 13,000 men were repairing the railroads. Besides laying track to patch the battle wrecked roads they built two major marshalling yards on land formerly cultivated by French farmers. One of these has 33 tracks adding up to 15 miles.

They have laid or rehabilitated more than 2,240 miles of single track and 3,293 miles of double tracks since D-day. They shoved 33 trains from Avranches to Le Mans nearly the same day Le Mans was liberated.

Burpee, Ross and others paid the highest compliment to the men operating the railroads. Burpee said they often were operating within five miles of the front and that "they have been strafed, bombed and sniped at." He said, however, that the greatest danger was brought about by the necessity of violating many safety percepts of peace time railroading.

Drive Without Lights.

Trains drive thru the blackout without headlights. The engineers do not always know what looms around the next bend. The crew can feel the track sag when trackers recently have repaired a bomb rupture.

The result of this work, it is said, is that the railroads already are carrying more supplies to the front than are the motor vehicles and this percentage is expected to increase.

Our engineers, sometimes working within artillery range of the enemy, have set spans across the Seine, Vire, Oise and other continental rivers. One of these was 300 feet long. Another stood 100 feet high.

Among those "working on the railroad" are Corp. Hank Bednarek of Chicago and Sgt. Howard Engel of Elmhurst, Ill.

There goes that library watch dog.

Its Destiny Met, Joan of Arc's Village Slumbers Thru War

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DOMREMY, France, Sept. 29.—This village on the Meuse river has slumbered thru the war, its destiny fulfilled five centuries ago.

Hardly a German came to the birthplace of Joan of Arc during the enemy occupation of France, and the rumble of conflict never neared the fields where the sanctified maid heard heavenly voices in 1429. The closest any Nazi forces had been was Neufchateau, six miles south, and they left there on Sept. 2.

Gen. De Goislard de Montsabert, who commanded the 3d Algerian infantry division in the sweep thru southern France, visited here today at the request of Gen. De Gaulle, who uses the cross of Lorraine for his standard, as did Joan. Montsabert attended mass in the basilica on the hill and also went to the little church in the town.

Britain's Flag Absent.

In the latter edifice, rebuilt in 1824, Joan was baptized and made her first communion. French tricolors and the Star Spangled Banner fly above the church entrance—there is no Union Jack, for Domremy has not forgotten it was the British who burned Joan at the stake.

Inside the church are relics, sculptures, and symbolic paintings of the saint, and on a white inscription plaque donated thru the centuries are penciled prayers by Domremy residents to Joan to watch over the supplicants' relatives and sweethearts at war and to have her spirit flame again to protect France. Several of the scrawls are dated June 6, 1944—invasion day—and implore her guidance for the success of the allies.

Birthplace Restored.

Nearby is the house, also restored, where Joan was born in 1412. Adjacent to it is a museum containing more relics, paintings, and statuary.

A guide said that during the war there had been few visitors to the shrine from outside the neighborhood but that in peace time he often conducted as many as 1,000 a day who had come from all parts of the world.

No direct descendants of Joan's family now live in Domremy, most of the family having gone to Paris generations ago. Joan is still a favorite name for girls born here.

Fisher, and Leo Lowitz, attorney and former president of the American Jewish congress, will be speakers.

Larrison Inquest Delayed Again; Hunt Mat Capone

An inquest into the death of Jens D. Larrison, who was shot and killed on April 18 in Mat Capone's tavern at 4839 Ogden av., Cicero, was continued for the ninth time yesterday at the request of police. Detective Murray Rover of the Fillmore st. station, said police were still searching for Capone and Willie Sanders, bartender.

U. OF I. TRUSTEES VOTE TO ASSIST HOME BUILDERS

State help for prospective builders of small homes was assured yesterday when the board of trustees of the University of Illinois, meeting at the University club, voted to establish a small homes council and to appropriate $6,000 from the university's general reserve fund to support the project during its first year.

The council's first objective is "to inform the public on all problems of building a home, including financing and contracts, planning and design, requirements of the site, construction and materials, decoration and furnishing, mechanical equipment, and utilities and appliances."

Center to Be Set Up.

A demonstration center will be established, bulletins and circulars published, new materials and methods tested, and cost data collected. The home costing $5,000 to $6,000, or less will be the council's special province.

The council is an outgrowth of a series of studies of small homes and low cost housing made by Rexford Newcomb, dean of the university's college of fine and applied arts; M. L. Enger, dean of the college of engineering, and a group of university men under their direction.

Curriculum Approved.

The trustees also approved the university senate's recommendations for a curriculum leading to the degree of bachelor of science in aeronautical engineering. The curriculum, a four year one, will go into effect this fall.

Dr. Allan G. Brodie, head of the department of orthodontia in the college of dentistry since 1937, was named acting dean of the college to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Dean H. M. Marjerison. Prof. A. R. Knight, member of the college of engineering faculty since 1913, was made acting head of the department of electrical engineering. Henry Clifford Hawes, of the firm of Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, of Chicago, was appointed to the board of examiners in accountancy.

Dr. Coleman R. Griffith, a faculty member for nearly 30 years and head of the bureau of institutional research since 1933, was named university provost. Albert J. Harno, dean of the college of law, who resigned the post of provost last summer, was appointed legal counsel for the university.

RUSSIANS FREE ALL OF ESTONIA EXCEPT 2 ISLES

Gain in Three Way Drive Against Hungary.

LONDON, Sept. 30 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian and Romanian armies made new gains yesterday in their three way drive to knock Hungary out of the war, and a Moscow bulletin announced that Red troops had freed all of Estonia except the islands of Osel and Dago, off the west coast.

The Swiss radio said, however, that the Russians had landed on both Osel and Dago. The islands guard the approaches to the gulf of Riga.

Radio France at Algiers, Algeria, said demonstrations broke out in Budapest, the capital, after it became known there that the Russians had reached pre-war Hungary.

Targu-Mures, Transylvanian city 48 miles southeast of Cluj, Hungarian annexed capital, fell to Russians who surged across the Mures river, Moscow's broadcast bulletin said.

The Russians seized points on a 12 mile front on the east bank of the Mures extending northward from Targu-Mures to captured Ternuteni. In establishing their west bank bridgehead they captured several localities, making a total of 50 in that area for the day.

Nazi Withdrawal Perilled.

Withdrawing Nazis were in danger of being cut off at Oradea, 130 miles northwest of Targu-Mures. A Bucharest bulletin said the Russians and Romanians had broken into Oradea, which controls a main Nazi escape route. Oradea is six miles from the pre-war Hungarian frontier and 130 miles southeast of Budapest.

Berlin implied that the Red army temporarily had smashed into Szeged, Hungary's second city, when it claimed that Szeged, Gyula, and Oradea were "again in Hungarian hands."

Russian and Romanian units also were spreading out thru the Banat district of western Romania and Berlin said they had twice crossed the Danube river into Yugoslavia to strike at the southern border of Hungary.

Advance at Czech Border.

On the Carpathian mountain front along the Czech-Polish border, separated from northern Hungary by narrow Ruthenian territory, the Russians said troops captured 100 localities as they advanced in passes leading into Czechoslovakia.

South and southeast of Turka, in old Poland, the Russians seized 60 localities.

In the Delatyn area, near the eastern tip of Czechoslovakia, other Russians captured 40 places on both sides of Tatar pass.

A special Moscow announcement said Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army, which is pressing toward Riga, had killed 30,000 Germans and captured 15,745 between Sept. 17 and 26. The total number of Germans killed or captured in Estonia was put at 45,745.

Advances reported by Partisan forces in southeastern Europe.

TITO PARTISANS NEAR CAPITAL OF YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP).—Marshal Tito's Partisans, battling mixed forces of Germans, Yugoslav puppet troops and Gen. Draja Mihailovitch's Chetniks, are "standing on the approaches to Belgrade," Yugoslav capital, a free Yugoslav broadcast said tonight.

[A broadcast in Greek from Ankara, Turkey, heard yesterday in New York, said without confirmation that the Yugoslav Patriots had captured Belgrade.]

The Tito bulletin said Mihailovitch was among Chetniks routed in a two-day battle at Leznica, 55 miles southwest of Belgrade, and the Partisans captured Leznica and inflicted 700 casualties.

Koceljevo, on the Tamnava river only 40 miles southwest of the capital, also was entered. "Many enemy forces fled without waiting for our units," the bulletin said, and a later broadcast said Belgrade factory workers were coöperating inside the city.

Town Retaken, Nazis Claim.

A German bulletin states that German troops, fighting alongside Croat units, had reconquered Banja Luka, 95 miles southeast of the Croat capital, Zagreb, and 160 miles west of Belgrade, "and thus reëstablished connection with the garrison there which had been cut off several days."

The Tito converging movement on Belgrade extended southward 63 miles to the Gornji-Milanovac area, where 110 Germans were killed and 206 taken prisoner out of a German column that was pressing northward. Still farther south, the Tito bulletin said, 170 Germans, Chetniks and puppet troops were lost when caught trying to break out of a pocket in the Rasina river valley.

The broadcast did not mention Red army troops, which Berlin said yesterday had crossed the Danube river in a sector 100 miles east of Belgrade. Today's German bulletin said Nazi Alpine troops had counter-attacked the Russians, killing 500 and capturing 200 in the Danube bend west of Turnu-Severin.

Port Near Fiume Taken.

In eastern Bosnia, the Tito bulletin said, Partisans captured Sebrenik and Topare, wiping out 150 enemy troops. Fighting was continuing for the railway between Siak and Novska. On the northern Dalmatian coast Jablanan, a port on the channel leading into the port of Fiume, was taken.

In Slovenia other units destroyed Litija bridge, the largest objective on the railway between Ljubljana and Zidani Most. Fifty Germans were captured on the bridge and 550 were killed.

Allied headquarters in Italy were silent on operations of the small air borne and sea borne units that were disclosed two days ago to have landed along the Adriatic coast of Yugoslavia and Albania.

Balkan air force Mustangs shot up and destroyed several grounded enemy planes and gliders yesterday in sweeps over the Salonika area of Greece.

ITALY'S STATUS ILLOGICAL, SAYS VATICAN PAPER

ROME, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said today that Italy's status of co-belligerency was a paradox which "no logic" could justify. Commenting on the speech by British Prime Minister Churchill yesterday, the newspaper said his words indicated accomplishments with regard to fuller Italian-allied collaboration, but added that all Italy's vital interests were based on the necessity of reaching the end of the war as "an ally among allies."

Churchill's speech left no doubt that the Italian people's feelings in this respect are appreciated sincerely by allied governments, it said.

Some Rome newspapers viewed without enthusiasm the prospect of Italian aid to the allies in the war on Japan, expressing doubt that Italy would be able materially to pursue such a war. Instead greater participation of Italians in the war against Germany was suggested.

Buerckel, Hitler Aid, Dies of Pneumonia at 49

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP).—Josef Buerckel, 49, Hitler aid who became a gauleiter, reichsgovernor and defense commissioner for Westmark as a reward for his Nazi political activities, has died of pneumonia, the German radio said today. The official German news agency DNB said Dr. Willi Stoehr had been appointed acting gauleiter for Westmark province, which includes the area around Saarbrucken and German-occupied Lorraine.

La Guardia to Reach Italy Soon as Civil Chief: Rome

LONDON, Sept. 30 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Rome radio said today Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City will arrive in Rome "shortly" to become administrator of liberated Italy. The broadcast did not give the source of its information.

YANKS WIN FOUR HILLS IN DRIVE TO ITALY PLAINS

ROME, Italy, Sept. 29 (AP).—Rain and mud were helping today to slow the advance of the allied 5th and 8th armies into the Po valley.

The weather, however, was not the only reason that allied forces were almost at a standstill. The Germans were fighting ferociously, realizing that one allied breakthru might bring disaster to their entire position in northern Italy. They counter-attack violently whenever the opportunity offers.

In the only announced specific gains of consequence yesterday, American troops pushed to the top of four more hills commanding stretches of mountain roads leading down the northern slopes of the Appenine mountains into Bologna and Imola.

One of the captured heights, Mount Battaglia, is only 11 miles from Imola, on the highway between Rimini and Bologna. The three others — Mount Bastione, Mount Canda and Mount Il Pogio—are roughly 20 miles south of Bologna, on the main highway north from Florence.

There still remain many more heights from which the Nazis must be dislodged before allied armor and infantry can flow out onto open terrain from this sector for a showdown battle.

Swiss Ban Arms Export; Nazis Are Main Target

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 29 (AP).—Switzerland decided today to ban the export of weapons effective Sunday. While the ban applies to all countries, it will affect Germany principally.

"Now, wait till he's had time to visit with his mother. Then, I'll send you over for a cup of sugar, or something."

3 SMALL BRITTANY PORTS USED TO KEEP INVADERS SUPPLIED

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP).—Thousands of tons of supplies for the allied armies which swept thru France were channeled into three relatively small Brittany ports, headquarters of the United States naval forces in Europe disclosed tonight.

American and British craft, including tank landing ships, put into the ports at Morlaix, Roscoff, and St. Michel-en-Greve almost immediately after the army had cleared the beach obstacles and mines had been swept.

Enemy forces blew the canal locks at Morlaix, biggest of the three, but United States army engineers quickly repaired them. American landing craft now move down the canal with the tide and unload in the center of the town.

F.D.R. ATTACKS ARGENTINA FOR AXIS LEANINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—President Roosevelt today assailed the Argentine government for undermining western hemisphere solidarity by allowing the growth of Nazi-Fascist influences at a time when totalitarian forces are facing defeat.

In a formal statement Mr. Roosevelt said that this government has felt increasing concern over the developments in its South American neighbor in recent months. He struck at the Argentine government, which the United States has refused to recognize for nine months, and asserted that the majority of the Argentine people are sympathetic to the allied cause and democracy.

"The Argentine government has repudiated solemn inter-American obligations on the basis of which the nations of this hemisphere developed a system of defense to meet the challenge of axis aggression," he said.

MARAUDERS GET A NEW ORDER—ON TO MYITKYINA!

Learn Burma Drive Must Cross Mountains.

Their numbers depleted by heavy losses at Inkangahtawng and Nhpum Ga, Burma, Merrill's Marauders imagine their perilous behind the line mission is ended. They learn, however, the hardest task still lies ahead. Their story is told by a Chicago veteran of their spectacular campaign.

BY S/SGT. WM. J. ANDERSON,
Composite Unit 5307 [Merrill's Marauders], United States Army.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The big lesson learned from the reverses and losses at Inkangahtawng and Nhpum Ga was that timing had to be near perfect if the Marauders were to carry out effectively the missions Lt. Gen. Stilwell had envisioned for us. The feasibility and immense value of the Marauders as a behind the lines force had been demonstrated at Walawbum.

At Inkangahtawng we were in too early, giving the Japs time to deal with us with their superior numbers, while Stilwell's Chinese still were too far off to be of any help. The Nhpum Ga disaster to B battalion followed. If the Japs had pressed their advantage, we all could have been wiped out. In a few words, we thought our necks were out too far.

Jap Losses Heavier, but——.

This feeling was not directed at our superiors. They were all good officers, were in the thick of it with us, and were obeying orders just as we were. It was consoling to know that the toll we had taken of the Japs was many times greater than our own losses, yet we had not succeeded in accomplishing the task laid out for us: blocking of the Jap supply route.

Depressed tho we were, we were heartened by the belief our campaign was over. We had been told it would last six to eight weeks. We had been in action nine weeks.

There were 10 days or so of pleasurable contemplation, then we got a rude jolt. A long string of supply planes flew over, dropping shoes, new denims, replacements for jungle packs, and much ammunition. This decidedly was not so good. And it was a true omen. On April 24, we started pulling out—not for the north, as we had hoped, but for the osutheast. On April 28, we received our orders. We were on our last mission: capture of the vital air strip at Myitkyina, about 75 miles south and east as the crow flies and much farther by trail.

Fear Second Disaster.

We knew of the place from looking at maps that showed Stilwell's progress toward Mogaung and Kamaing. Because neither of these places had fallen, the men wondered why we were being sent so far behind Jap lines. To us it looked then as if it might be a repetition of the disaster at Inkangahtawng and Nhpum Ga. This speculation undoubtedly was the start of what came to be known as the great morale break.

Now we began to count the seriousness of our losses. For example, there should have been four platoons of 50 men each for every company. In the companies of C battalion, there were insufficient men for three platoons. B's situation was infinitely worse.

Facing Mountainous Country.

Our new maps showed the country ahead to be more than hilly—it was mountainous. Indeed, some of the elevations turned out to be from 8,000 to 10,000 feet. And the men expected a tough battle at Myitkyina. It was a sizeable town with a railway and substantial buildings. It also was an important Irrawaddy river point. We were to be there May 12, just two weeks away.

We were sweating out the days before the start of the monsoon—the deluging seasonal rains that the British had forecast would stop Stilwell's Burma campaign, miring him down in the Hukawng valley. We heard that Stilwell first had said he would be clear of Hukawng valley before the monsoon set in. Another version was that he would stop at Walawbum, if necessary. But as the rains were late, he kept pushing on. This was to go for us, too, it seemed.

Under Strain for Three Months.

We even heard that we might be expected to "ignore" the monsoon. This would have been something like standing on a railroad track and ignoring an oncoming express train. The monsoon already was overdue. We were having daily rain and, while it fell in nothing like monsoon intensity, it was an ever present reminder.

The big thing to be considered in judging the men's feelings is that, for virtually three months, they had been at combat tension every minute. We were not like the ordinary combat unit which goes up, fights, then retires to a safe area. There were no safe areas in our part of Burma.

We had to go on the theory that the Jap was just around the bend of the trail, was in the tree just above us, or was in the bush behind us, looking over our shoulders. And, generally speaking, he was.

Such a sustained period of combat tension affects a man physically as well as mentally. It is an insidious, abnormal sort of fatigue, both mental and physical. Added to the extraordinary daily hardship of such a mission as ours, such fatigue is likely to discourage a man and render him irritable and suspicious. Let him get even the faintest idea that he is considered expendable; that he is where he is for the purpose of being expended, and you have undermined seriously the thing known as morale.

On the morning we started for Myitkyina, we began to hear first hand of the journey that lay ahead. The Kachin [Burmese hill billy] guides stared in amazement at our pack animals, laden heavily with our precious 75 mm. howitzers, mortars and ammunition, machine guns and ammunition, food, and medical supplies.

There was only a footpath over the mountains and even this gave out at times, the Kachins told us. The climb would be an ordeal even for unencumbered men or animals. Taking the pack train was unthinkable, they said. But there was nothing else we could do. Men weighted by 80 pounds of pack, rifle, and ammunition certainly could not lug howitzers, mortars, machine guns, and their ammunition. This convinced the Kachins we were daffy.

SHIP SURVIVES 3 TORPEDOES IN CARIBBEAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—An unseen submarine in Caribbean waters recently fired three torpedoes in less than 30 minutes at the American tanker Kittanning, crippling but not sinking her, the war shipping administration reported today.

After the second torpedo struck, WSA said, Capt. Raymond J. Schambers ordered ship abandoned. There were no casualties.

HOPE FADES FOR CHINESE AID IN COAST LANDING

CHUNGKING, Sept. 29 (AP).—The prospect of effective Chinese support for any landing made by allied forces on the coast of China has faded in the opinion of leaders in this war-weary capital.

The general view today was that recent Japanese successes already have prolonged the war's probable duration by months and reduced seriously the offensive capacity of the Chinese army.

The possibility that Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's United States 14th air force might lose more of its advance bases in South China contributed to pessimism.

Politically, the Chinese defeats have reduced the prestige of the central government, an important factor in its relations with the Chinese Communists in the north and the Communist guerrilla forces operating in Japanese occupied provinces. Moreover, there is a growing concern over the possibility that China's influence at the peace table might be adversely affected.

Air Fields Pushed Back.

Chennault already has lost several major and minor air fields and the loss of his three remaining forward bases—at Kweilin, Tanchuk, and Liuchow—is probable within a short time. If that happens, he would have to move his operations back to the big base at Kunming, 450 miles west of Kweilin. Bombing of Japanese shipping from that point would be difficult.

Some of the best Chinese divisions have been chewed up by the better trained, better equipped, and better led Japanese forces. Under the most favorable conditions, their reorganization and return to the field as effective units would require several months.

Just now the Chinese press and radio are campaigning to obtain 100,000 men from the student class for technical services such as communications, and to provide noncommissioned and commissioned officers. But even if this is successful, little immediate benefit could be expected.

Feel United States Will Do It.

Pitifully lacking in equipment, badly fed and almost without medical facilities, the Chinese have been fighting under the most adverse conditions since 1937.

Somewhat harder to gauge but nevertheless real, is a widespread acceptance of the fact that American forces in the Pacific are gaining against Japan and that further all-out Chinese contributions could at best merely shorten the war.

The Chinese Communists are claiming more and more autonomy. The deadlock between the Communists and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's regime continues. Central government forces guard the frontier of Communist areas and the Communists in turn refuse to move unless they get a share of lend-lease supplies from the United States, all of which now are delivered to Chungking.

Japs Storm Paoching.

Japanese forces have broken into Paoching and are being engaged by battle-weary Chinese in bitter street fighting while another invader column to the south plunged ahead 20 miles to—within 35 miles of the Kwangsi capital of Kweilin, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Invasion units entered Paoching thru its west gate yesterday.

Paoching, less than 150 miles northeast of Kweilin, has menaced the enemy's right flank in the Japanese attempt to envelop Kweilin, site of a United States 14th air force base.

To the southeast Japanese troops driving along the West river moved closer from two sides to Tanchuk, also the site of an advanced American air base, some 90 miles from Kweilin. These columns drove to within 20 miles of each other, one of them to within three miles of the base, some 47 miles west of Wuchow, but the Chinese said they were repulsed.

[A Tokyo war bulletin said Paoching had been occupied completely, and that Tanchuk also was captured.]

Japanese forces driving north from the Luichow peninsula suffered cutting of their lines of supply and communications at several points, the high command indicated.

JAPS IN BURMA FLEE AGAIN TO AVERT TRAP BY INDIAN DIVISION

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Sept. 29 (AP).—Threatened a second time with encirclement by the 5th Indian division, Japanese rear guards in Burma have withdrawn from positions north of the enemy base of Tiddim and have resumed their retreat southward, Adm. Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today. The Indians, approaching Tiddim over the "Chocolate Staircase" route—a road winding up 3,000 feet in 40 hairpin turns—were last reported less than seven miles from the city.

These imperial troops recently made an 88 mile jungle march, throwing a hook around Tongzang, 15 miles north of Tiddim. They then advanced eight miles beyond Tongzang.

The troops were being given close air support and were being supplied by plane drops.

Australia Plans Pacific Plane Transport System

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Australian government proposes an early opening of trans-Pacific military air service, operated by Australian, New Zealand, Canadian, and British air forces, Air Minister A. S. Drakeford told the house of representatives today. This system would pave the way for commercial service at an appropriate time between Australasia and the United States and Canada, he added.

SECOND PEARL HARBOR? NEW BASE LOOKS IT

BY FRED HAMPSON.

A SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ISLAND NAVAL BASE (AP).—"Are we building a second Pearl Harbor in the Pacific?"

It looks like it.

So far, this equatorial base is concerned principally with logistics but its growing appearance certainly suggests something more than that. It is far west of Pearl Harbor. A look at the map proves that it could be a great tactical base.

Many Installations.

There are acres upon acres of food storage plants, machine shops, welding plants, and repair depots. There is a dock at which two huge freighters were unloading today, and more docks obviously are being planned and built.

Out in the harbor where—one commander said—"the whole Pacific fleet could anchor with room left over," are small islands and on these are more shops and repair depots, rest camps and recreation centers and various types of moorages and navy land and amphibious air bases.

The roads are muddy but wide and are being surfaced. There are many miles of them along the beach and up into the hills where there are coast defense construction and dock worker camps and all sorts of operational camps with tremendous quantities of stores and equipment.

To my eyes, which are accustomed to installations of a transitory nature [tactical bases which we abandon as the war moves forward], these camps have a look of permanency.

Not Built to Be Abandoned.

The hospital area covers acres. The finished buildings are in some cases more than a city block in length and have cement floors and cement receiving driveways and sidewalks. Around them are hospital staff quarters that weren't built to be abandoned two months hence when we move forward.

I saw almost every major type of Australian and American naval vessel in the bay. I don't know how many scores of freighters were in the harbor. There was every type of tactical amphibious craft there. There is a floating drydock that looks as tho it could handle anythink with a keel.

The place is no secret to the Japanese. There are still some in these islands. The navy has taken the position for some time now in this part of the world that it doesn't care what the Japanese know inasmuch as they have long since lost the power to do anything about it.

NAZIS ARREST SON OF CLEMENCEAU FOR 'MISQUOTE' PROTEST

PARIS, Sept. 29 (AP).—Michel Clemenceau, 71 year old son of France's "Fighting Tiger," Georges Clemenceau, was taken to a German prison camp in May, 1943, for protesting the misuse by Nazis of extracts from his father's speeches, it was reported here today.

The information became known as Paris observed the centenary of Georges Clemenceau's birth. The son protested to the Nazis and to Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval against use of isolated portions of his father's speeches for propaganda purposes.

THE AIRWAYS TO ASIA AND EUROPE.

Pan American World Airways has asked the government to designate Chicago as a port of entry for planes flying the international trade routes. Government officials who have been acting on the belief that many years must elapse before flying on the northern routes to Europe and Asia will amount to anything may well be shaken out of their lethargy by this announcement. It means that the men in the business are ready to start such services as soon as the war is over and the operators are freed of their present obligations to serve the government.

Overseas flying is not a romantic dream. It is an actuality. Services to Europe, Asia, and South America were in successful operation before the war. Now hundreds of planes cross the oceans on regular schedules every week. The equipment is at hand and there is no lack of factory experience and capacity to build even better ships. Thousands of men have been trained as pilots, navigators, and airplane mechanics. The northern routes, for the most part, have been surveyed. Everything is in readiness, including vast numbers of people who are eager to travel abroad for business and pleasure and are no less eager to avoid long sea voyages. Everything is ready; that is, except the arrangements which our governments must make.

Chicago's government has been laggard in providing suitable airports, but, thanks to the activity of Gov. Green, there is much reason to hope that this problem will soon be solved. The administration in Washington, however, is sound asleep. Our government has been spending tens of millions of dollars in constructing flying fields in many parts of the world, but has done little or nothing to assure the use of these facilities by our commercial air lines after the war. The New Deal, as usual, is contenting itself with giving things and money away without thought of the nation's future welfare.

In particular, the state department has failed to negotiate now for the use of Canadian air fields by our commercial air lines. The lines of flight to Europe and Asia from the United States will lie over Canada. Pan American proposes to fly from Chicago to London and the other European capitals by way of Montreal. The routes to Asia lie over Canada's prairie provinces. All of our air lines which are planning intercontinental services have similar plans. The United States may be locked out of this business unless the appropriate arrangements are made with Canada and they can be made with least difficulty now, when Canada and, indeed, the whole British empire, are conscious of their debt to us for war time services.

Instead of pressing the national interest our state department allowed Canada to recover title to the air fields we built in the dominion and to get them at less than they had cost us. Sen. Brooks spoke with great effect on this point on Sept. 5. It was no accident that it was the spokesmap of Illinois who called the attention of the senate to the matter. In its application to have Chicago designated a port of entry Pan American said that from 40 to 50 per cent of its trans-Atlantic business originated in the middle west. Mr. Brooks was speaking for the middle west when he said:

"When this war is over we shall face the problems of peace as well as prosperity in the light of lessons learned in the war. Taking the city of Chicago as a hub, the shortest route to London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, or Tokyo will be directly over Canada where great airports have been built by the forces and finances of the United States. Yet the war department already has disposed of the airports by sale without first having our country enter into a treaty which will establish our rights in future use of these strategic bases."

It is to be hoped and expected that Mr. Brooks will persist in his effort to secure America's future in air commerce. Much good would be accomplished by a senate resolution calling upon the President and the state department to negotiate the treaties assuring Americans the right to use the airports needed in international and intercontinental flying. We built many of them for war. We shall need them in peace.

A CONTRAST.

The Dumbarton Oaks conference seems to have struck a snag. The Russian delegates say, in effect, that they aren't going to have anything to do with a league of nations that can make trouble for Russia. Russia insists that all decisions of the council be by unanimous vote and that for this purpose the nation whose acts of alleged aggression are being examined must be allowed to vote as usual. As Russia will never vote for war upon Russia, Russia will have nothing to fear from the league.

The position taken by Stalin's representative may indicate an intention to extend communism by force to other lands or it may indicate nothing more than fear of a coalition of capitalist nations against the communist nation. At any rate, the Russian government has an eye on the national interest and that is more than can be said for our government. It seems not to have occurred to Mr. Roosevelt's administration that ours is, by all odds, the richest country on the globe, and the most envied. Our immigration laws and tariff laws are widely resented. By a moderate extension of the meaning of words these and other acts of the American government could be viewed as aggressive. They could be made the excuse for a war of spoliation, just as Russia's communism might become the excuse for an ideological war. Stalin has his guard up. Roosevelt hasn't.

Similarly, the house of commons has just protested, and apparently has won its point, against the grant of diplomatic immunity and consular privileges to representatives of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration on duty in Britain. The house of commons resents a suggestion that English laws and customs are so barbarous that a kind of extraterritoriality must be accorded the representatives of UNRRA. The house ignores the fact that it is for just such royal tinsel that the American representatives are willing to part with untold millions of other Americans' money.

Nothing more than national pride was involved in the matter of the UNRRA agents. The American administration gave away a much more important and substantial point when it agreed to put up by far the greater part of the money for UNRRA but reserved to itself only one vote among 44 in the management. American taxpayers will contribute most of the money and most of the food, clothing, and machinery to be given away, but will have no control over the distribution.

The contrast between the cautious attitude of foreign administrations, when their national interest or prestige is in any way involved, and the reckless disregard by the American administration of the interests of our country is striking. It is time we had spokesmen in Washington who thought of America first.

OFFICE OF POLITICAL ADVANTAGE.

Two women who worked in OPA offices in Chicago have told under oath how OPA jobs are parceled out. Mrs. Vera E. Robinson said she went to her alderman, Frank Keenan, 49th ward Democrat, who gave her a letter to Mayor Kelly's office. From there she was sent to OPA headquarters, where she was given a civil service blank to fill out and told when to report for work.

Mrs. Robinson's testimony, which was verified by Mrs. Margaret B. Weaver, the other employe, also disclosed a shocking story of political favoritism; how extra gasoline was doled out illegally to city hall politicians; how employes in the overstaffed OPA issuance office here fooled away their time in idleness; and how deductions were made from the employes' pay for the Democratic campaign fund.

There is no reason to disbelieve the testimony of these women, given under oath. Both of them quoted Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, to whom they first told their story, as saying: "I had hoped it was not true, but I know it is true. And it's the kind of a story that makes my blood boil."

The deceit which surrounds OPA probably would not be so bitterly resented by the American people if the New Dealers had not insisted, ever since its founding, that OPA is a completely nonpolitical, unbiased government agency doing the necessary job of holding down prices and securing fair distribution of necessary food and goods thru rationing. It never has been and it never will be that.

OPA is a New Deal institution, and as such it is a political pork barrel first, whatever its published aims and objectives may be. OPA jobs, like any other New Deal jobs, have to be cleared thru the Democratic ward organizations, and will have to be cleared thru Sidney Hillman or his assistants if the fourth term drive is successful. The Democratic political bosses are running OPA, and if favors are dispensed they get them or distribute them. As long as there are votes that can be bought, favors will be dispensed.

The people who fought against the creation of this great army of political burocrats and urged that voluntary rationing be tried first did so because they knew how OPA was going to turn out, and they were right. The New Dealers are talking now about retaining OPA and other government controls over our economy when peace comes. They say this creaking burocratic machinery—like Mr. Roosevelt—is indispensable. It is indispensable to the Democratic big city bosses, to the professional New Deal politicians, to the ward workers who have to be rewarded some way, to Sidney Hillman, and Harry Hopkins, and all the rest of the New Deal hierarchy right up to Mr. Roosevelt.

It is appalling to consider that OPA and the other war time New Deal bureaus which are run by and for the Democratic politicians may be continued after peace comes. The American people will not and must not tolerate it. The need for these controls will have disappeared, and the only excuse for maintaining them will be to feed an army of political workers. Americans are not going to allow themselves to be saddled with that kind of a burden when there is so much work to be done rebuilding a peaceful and prosperous economy.

A SPLIT IN THE RANKS.

[New York Sun.]

Ten of 21 members of Rhode Island's Industrial Trades Unions Political Action committee, subdivision of the CIO-Political Action committee for that state, have resigned. A statement issued by nine of them says that "after careful consideration we have come to the conclusion that we would benefit by leaving politics alone," and adds: "As free men we wish to have our rights to vote for whom we please." There is a tinge of ingratitude—however great the truth—in the final remark: "We have many laws today favorable to working men and women and it was not Sidney Hillman or the CIO who got them for us."

The Rhode Island action follows that of union officials in Utah who similarly resigned because they did not want to be told how to vote. Neither Utah nor Rhode Island is among the states that are most powerful politically, altho the latter is one of the most thoroly unionized. They may be small, the one in population and the other in size, but they raise a complaint that is likely to be echoed in larger states before election.

MR. PEPYS AT KICKOFF.

30th Sept.—Will open the daylight football season this afternoon, having opened and closed the night time part of it last week. Will have my old seats at Dyche stadium, right back of the guests of honor and beside the students' section, which is a good place to see if the victims lugged off the field are seriously injured, and to observe the leaps and bounds of Miss Lynn Vitts, the Wildcats' chief encourager.

Have been dodging rainstorms, and swatting the last flies of summer, and pulling sandburs out of my dog's paws. But it has been a quiet week for every one has been holding their breath over the paratroopers in Holland and the neck-and-neck finish between the baseballers. My only achievement has been to cure a cold faster than ever in my life, and any one who says it was done with whisky is misinformed.

This reminds me I know a man who was cured by a hair of the dog that bit him. He was badly chewed on the back of the hand, and his folks, who were country people, pulled out a batch of the dog's hair and poulticed it over the wounds. His hand swelled badly, but he didn't get hydrophobia. Neither did the dog. This happened in Ireland many years ago, and if you don't believe it, ask Joe Gibbons, senior officer at the information desk on the fourth floor of this Tower. Joe celebrated his 25th anniversary of duty a few days ago, and had a huge cake with presents attached.

Eleven days hence my Linebook of 1944 will go on sale, and the contributors' club has begun to arrange a dinner to celebrate the event with C. Otto Ruess, 120 S. La Salle st., as social secretary. Publication is a month and a half earlier than usual.

LINES FOR AUTUMN.

When summer sheds her splendor
At fate's august command,
When autumn, careless spender,
Spreads sadness thru the land,
Old thoughts of spring, fleet winging,
Set every heart to singing,
Tho spectral death goes swinging
His scythe on every hand.

But more there is to cheer us
Than dreams of springtime old,
For joy is ever near us
From treasures manifold:
In every field and garden
Are beauties fit for Arden.
Let autumn ask no pardon
Who brings her gifts of gold.

Circus Time in Boyland.

Our kid circuses were so good they aroused the professional jealousy of neighboring entrepreneurs. For example, the time Whitey Nixon spoiled Pickle Beckman's act and stopped the show. Whitey and Gooseneck Johnson, both running rival attractions farther up the alley, would pay their way into ours just to jeer and upset our specialties. Pickle's was the star number and first on the program [sure, he was manager].

As Tonguey Schram tooted a fanfare on a tin trumpet, Pickle, glamorous in red underwear tights, would leap forth from the dressing room. After the traditional cross-legged circus pose and kiss-throwing, he'd toss a clothesline over a roof beam and take a knotted end between his teeth. While he was gracefully spinning in the air with extended arms Tonguey and Splint [uh-huh, me] would haul him up to the beam.

In the excitement of opening the show on this particular day, none of us noticed Whitey Nixon stealthily climb over the chicken house, then up to the peak of the old barn where the shingles had broken away in spots. With him he had a half gallon bucket of soap suds which he dumped square into Pickle's upturned face at the peak of his act. Too late Pickle saw Whitey thru the broken shingles, but altho half blinded and strangled he dropped to the floor like a cat and down the ladder into the yard after Whitey.

Actors and audience followed pell-mell to see the two hurdling backyard fences with a long string of iridescent bubbles trailing Pickle in the afternoon sun. We thought it would make a swell number for our next show, but Pickle got sore and wouldn't coöperate. Chiggers.

[A Brookfield Ballad.]

It has been mentioned once or twice
These ballads lack somewhat in spice,
So we'll discuss [excuse the pun]
The bear that's known as "cinnamon."
The black bear's brother; he's known best
Because he lives with verve and zest;
He hates to work, except in fun
When there's some mischief to be done,
And when in trouble—one, two, three;
He simply scurries up a tree.
A bad example, you can tell
So let's pass on. You won't? O, well!

C. E. R. asks: "When a registrant passes from one age group to another what should he do about his classification if the fact of change in age puts him in another category?"

The registrant can write a letter to his local board calling attention to the fact and the local board on its own motion has the authority to postpone an induction and reopen the case. The local board, however, is not compelled to take such action, that is, it is not mandatory unless it is directed to do so by the state or national director of selective service.

A CLEAN MOUTH—AN AID TO HEALTH.

EVERY one has a right to be exclusive about his mouth. This part of the body, while it will withstand a generous amount of abuse, is quite likely to harbor organisms. A large number of letters from correspondents voice complaints such as burning or prickling sensations involving the mucous lining of the oral cavity as well as the tongue. Naturally a search must be made for the source of irritation.

Not long ago a reader related that off and on, for the last two or three months, she had observed swelling and redness of the gums and the inner aspects of the lips. Examination by the family doctor was suggested and the offender was found to be a lipstick, which contained an ingredient to which she is sensitive.

By and large, however, we have a right to suspect the presence of infection, either from bacteria or plant fungi. Tiny ulcerations may appear which look as tho a punch had removed a bit of tissue. The bottom of the crater will be covered with a dirty-gray mass while the edges will be raised, red, and inflamed. Such blemishes call for cauterization to destroy the invader. As a rule, powdered potassium alum will suffice. The material may be left in contact with the lesions for several minutes and then washed away.

We must keep in mind constantly the possibility of a food deficiency, particularly if we can detect fine lines at the corners of the mouth, which show a tendency to crust over. Here reinforcements with vitamin B will usually bring prompt results.

How much trouble comes from gargles that are too strong is difficult to determine. At any rate, whenever red areas exhibit themselves, it is always well to investigate the preparation to make certain that some chemical in the formula is not responsible. In such a situation it may be well to change the solution to one that is mild and harmless. Now and then a laxative will be at fault.

Another condition, which must not be overlooked, is leucoplakia. This is characterized by whitish patches on the tongue, the inside of the cheeks, the gums, and the lips. While the cause is not known definitely, excessive smoking is thought to be a factor. Any type of irritation, however, may be responsible—a jagged tooth, bridgework, or an ill fitting dental plate. The eruptions have a tendency to become glistening white and will thicken and increase in firmness gradually. If neglected, anemia may complicate the picture.

There is much that the physician can do, not only to prevent but to relieve these ailments. The first job is to clean up the mouth; second, to build reserve. Liver injections and a full complement of vitamins may be called for.

While we may look upon the beginnings of these maladies as unimportant, we must admit that general health may be influenced seriously if they are allowed to continue. Perhaps our dentists and nose and throat specialists detect these disorders more frequently than the physician. At any rate, "A stitch in time saves nine." Let's not load the entryway to the alimentary tract with any more germs than we can help.

Post-War Puppies.

There is no doubt but that the post-war world will be a delightful place where every man will have a job that will perform itself, every woman a house that will run itself, every man a woman, and vice versa. Manufacturing will be accomplished by the pressing of buttons, fields will be plowed by electric eyes, and the only persons who will have to stir a finger will be writers who still will have to scratch their heads for ideas.

All of those delights are taken for granted, along with the outlawing of caries, rabies, and babies who cry in the night, and the issuance to every man of a walkie-talkie which will enable him to commune with those with whom it is necessary for him to commune, as well as to hear what the man across the street is saying to his wife. But not until those brochures entreating us to subscribe to magazines began to pile up in the mail did we realize to what extent that post-war world really will go.

"Subscribe now to Zip-Lip, eight months for only $2, and know about your post-war world," they say ingratiatingly. What is going to happen in post-war France? In post-war Germany? In post-war Albania, Polynesia, and Tibet? The French don't know. The Germans don't know. The Albanians, Polynesians, and Tibetans don't know, but those gifted oracles, the magazine pundits, can tell you.

What is going to happen to the farm? The refrigerator? The kitchen sink? [Will the post-war regime unstop it? Or keep the faucets from dripping at 2 a. m.?] The lettuce patch? The rabbit hutch? The tablespoon?

Farmers don't know. Housewives don't know. Manufacturers can only hope. But the magazine soothsayers, who cut the veil of the future as easily as the rest of the world cuts cheese, can and are determined to tell you.

We have given careful study to many of these brochures and find them more fascinating than any fortune teller. After you have read a few, you feel not abreast but ahead of the world around you. You feel you alone have a good idea of everything that is projected for the post-war world, but every man can be wrong—often. Today's mail brought this hideous realization to us, for in it came some glowing yellow folders offering a dog magazine, five years for $5. This is at the rate of 8⅓ cents a copy.

"Hurry!" the big black script on the bright yellow paper directed us. "Hurry!"

Beneath that imperative, in even bolder black script, was:

"Your subscription now to Bow-Wow will keep you fully informed for the post-war era."

Beneath that is a drawing of a mongrel, his tail beneath his legs, his tongue protruding breathlessly from his mouth, as he leaps thru space. He apparently is leaping away from the post-war era.

This department is grateful to the Bow-Wow people. Their brochure jacked us right up mentally. Here we had been lolling around, not a thought or a worry about the post-war era in this head, for we knew the men of science and the men of higher thought had taken care of everything that conceivably might come up. Not one precious moment of meditation had we given to the post-war era for dogs.

Just what will happen to dogs? Will they, too, be better? Will they have longer tails—or no tails? Will their ears be cropped or worn like manes? Will the bite be removed from their bark, or will their bark still be worse than their bite? And what about Irene Castle McLaughlin? Does she come with the post-war era, or can we leave her behind with all the sad frustrations of this era?

At 8⅓ cents a copy, this post-war unveiling is a present must.

BRITISH COMMITMENTS AGAINST JAPAN.

Bellwood, Ill., Sept. 21.—I see by the papers the English have announced that "the moment the war in Europe is over, the entire British fleet will be alongside that of America in continuing the war against Japan." What about the British land forces? The war against Japan, in its final bloody stages, will be fought out, for the most part, on Asia's soil and on Japanese soil.

So, how about a commitment on the future coöperation of the British army? The British have several times more at stake in Asia than we have—Malaya, Singapore, New Guinea, India, Burma [not to mention New Zealand, Australia, and other South Pacific holdings of the British empire]. Included, of course, are Hong Kong and other British areas in China.

With 76 per cent of the European invasion forces and more than 90 per cent of the Pacific forces being American [to say nothing of lend-lease which is holding the bag on the whole world-wide show] it becomes instantly obvious that where we were once a bystander, practically the entire war has been shifted over into our laps.

Worse, the English are not only telling us where to fight, how much to kitty up in man power, weapons, food, money, and material, what to contribute to post-war world stability, and what our position is to be in post-war world economy, but they are also trying to dictate to us that we should vote for Franklin Roosevelt in the coming election. Can it be they know a soft touch when they see one? What else? AMERICAN.

HE WANTS ROOSEVELT.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—I have been reading your paper for 37 years. It's a very good newspaper, dignified and properly edited, but I wish to advise you that there's something very wrong with your principles. Of course, every one in the world has his failings and faults, but yours is beyond excuse—the way you are castigating our good President is really outrageous and unbecoming to say the least.

You had the same tactics in '32, '36, and '40 and still you can't see that the people can't be denied in this great democratic land of ours. We want Roosevelt, and we're going to elect him again as sure as you're a foot high and in spite of your mud slinging. Seeing, you can't see, and hearing, can't understand. ANTHONY M. MORAN.

THE CHOICE.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—If Dewey is elected, this country will once more emerge as the land of opportunity, the home of the free, the paradise of the world in which to bring up our children. If Roosevelt is reëlected it won't be long before we are virtually slaves under a regime of totalitarianism, subservient to Russia and perhaps also Britain, taxed heavily to the grave and for our masters the red disciples of communism. If you love America the choice should be clear. It spells Dewey. AMERICAN.

HE'D NAME THEM.

Palos Park, Ill., Sept. 23.—The men who for inadequate reasons go on strike now to extort higher wages during the war should carry for the rest of their days the appellation "strikeslaker." EVAN L. REED.

A CANADIAN SEES A TIRED, OLD MAN.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—In the Financial Post of Toronto, Ont., Sept. 23, in remarks by Kenneth R. Wilson on the Quebec meeting, there is this statement:

"About Mr. Roosevelt. No argument raged more frequently or more fervently than this increasingly important question of his health. After sitting not more than two yards away from him for some 40 minutes on the deck of the Citadel last week, I put myself unequivocally on the side of those who are genuinly alarmed at the change in his appearance. The man seemed haggard and drawn compared to last year. Of the trio, he seemed the oldest. Mackenzie King by all means the youngest. It was hard to believe that King and Churchill are reaching 70 next month; that Roosevelt is still eight years their junior. Of course it is easy to argue that Roosevelt, with his heroic struggle against sickness, starts with a terrible handicap. All this is true, but it makes one wonder all the more how he is going to be able to stand the terrific heat of another campaign battle, plus the overwhelming responsibility of the executive position in the days which are immediately ahead."

As these observations were those of an unbiased onlooker, it seemed important that they be relayed to the public. J. C. F.

HERE'S A DEAL.

Bellwood, Ill., Sept. 22.—The New Deal administration was elected to office on the platform of security, economy in government, and peace. And they have been elected again and again and again on this very pledge. I've been trying to unload some nice oil stock, beautifully engraved in flashy colors. Am particularly anxious to get in touch with some Democratic voters. Would be willing to "clear it thru Sidney." AMERICAN.

HAVE WE CONVINCED EVERYBODY?

Chicago, Sept. 21.—It seems strange that all of the letters published in the Voice of the People are in agreement with the editorial policy of your paper. You must be losing your effectiveness when no one feels it worth while to take issue with you, and I almost can agree with them for not writing [but I am, anyway]. GEO. H. REID.

IN LIEU OF PROBATE.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—My mother died intestate, leaving two vacant lots to her five heirs. One lot was recorded in her name and the other in the name of my deceased father. According to an estimate given me by a lawyer, the cost of probating the estate plus the back taxes and penalties make it inadvisable to acquire title in that manner. Is there a less expensive method of getting saleable title to the property? B. B.

If you are willing to wait seven years, the period for filing claims in absence of probate, you should be able to sell without probate on obtaining a court adjudication as to heirship. Your lawyer is in a better position to advise you than we are.

BUYS 'TWO PLUGS FULL OF WORMS,' ACCUSES AGENT

W. C. Mountjoy, 35, operator of training stables at Devon av. and Dee rd., Park Ridge, was named in a warrant issued yesterday by Judge William V. Daly in Felony court on a charge of operating a confidence game, after he was accused by a horse fancier of being a "Yankee horse trader."

Assistant State's Atty. Gordon Nash told the court that Lawrence P. Bardin, 440 Surf st., and Mountjoy appeared in his office Tuesday and Bardin, described as a fancier of show horses, accused Mountjoy of buying two horses for him at a cost of $5,500. "I got two plugs, full of worms," he complained. The horses, he said, were bought from Eugene Harris, former owner of the Club Alabam, 747 Rush st., who "had been trying to peddle the animals all over Chicago."

Mountjoy defended his act, saying that the animals were sound when he bought them. A hearing on the charge was set temporarily for Monday, providing Mountjoy can be found.

OPA WINS FIRST LANDLORD SUIT; HE MUST PAY $78

Hasten awarded the government a treble damage judgment of $78 and costs against Bud Anthony, owner of an apartment building at 2031 Maypole av. Marion W. Isbell, area director, who filed the suit, said Anthony increased the rent of two tenants $13 each for July without OPA permission. When the tenants, Thomas Hardy and James Patterson, did not sue Anthony in 30 days, the OPA filed suit. Isbell said his office is preparing several similar suits.

The OPA also won its first treble damage suit against a grocer to be decided in the state courts when Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan granted a judgment against Irvin Kossiv, store owner at 6556 Cottage Grove av., who allegedly overcharged three customers 15 cents each. The OPA said Kossiv ignored warning notices sent by the metropolitan offices. It was granted an injunction against further price violations.

Tribune Show to Point Trend in U. S. Styles

BY JUDITH CASS.

AT 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the W-G-N studio theater, the curtain will rise on the first of five showings of the 1944 Chicago Tribune American Fashions show. Capacity audiences will witness dramatic presentations of trends of the future in style creation, designed by artists the country over in a competition which closed May 1. Since then skilled dressmakers have brought to life the prize winning sketches selected by a board of judges, each costume made especially for the lovely model who will wear it.

Fashion conscious women were quick to secure tickets for the shows, as the theater's capacity is limited. Alert members of the St. Luke's Fashion show committee, which each year presents Chicago's largest benefit fashion show, will be in Thursday afternoon's audience; others—men and women—will watch the review Thursday night, and again Friday afternoon and night. Their ballots will determine the winners of first, second, and third prizes of $2,000, $1,000, and $500, respectively.

Wednesday night's performance was added to the original schedule of four public performances to take care of the overflow demand for tickets. Preceding Thursday's matinee performance Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, chairman of the St. Luke's fashion show Oct. 18 in the Stevens hotel, will entertain at luncheon at the Casino for several members of her committee, afterward taking them on to the W-G-N studio. Among her guests will be Mrs. Frank Hibbard, vice chairman of the St. Luke's show; Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, Mrs. Watson McLallen, and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler.

Mrs. Paul H. Holinger, also of the St. Luke's board; Mrs. Richard D. Nugent, Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., Mrs. E. Cummings Parker, Mrs. Evans J. Thomas, Mrs. Roy L. Flannery, Mrs. Wayne Wills, Mrs. Jere Patterson, and Mrs. Ralph W. Applegate, are others who have fashion show tickets. Tickets for the Wednesday night performance still are available and may be obtained by calling Superior 0100, extension 530 for reservations. Checks should be made out to American Fashions, Tribune Charities, Inc., 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago 11, Ill. Seats are $2 each for the Wednesday performance.

Newest Ballet, Is Fascinating Abstraction

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

A quizzical excursion into dance geometry, "Dances Concertantes," made its Ballet Russe début at the Civic Opera house last night, a fascinating Balanchine abstraction set in luminous Berman pastels against a slate chalked background, and danced to Stravinsky's wittily wiry score, which is not so much gay as a remembered echo of gaiety, brushed with insouciance and accented with a dash of syncopation.

This, like "Serenade," is all line and color, but the color is more brilliant, the line more acrid. It is jade and magenta, lemon and turquoise, the costumes mere sheaths for dancing, the outer curtain a splashing introduction like a huge ballet bookplate. The design is not so much fluid as active, constantly coming to a point, a volatile etching in a sharpened classic style. It looks to me like a ballet I will enjoy increasingly as I see it—at least, that is what happened to me with the now beloved "Serenade."

The performance was exceptionally good, particularly in view of the sudden cast changes necessitated by Frederic Franklin's injury—and we might as well face it, he can't dance for us this season. But Leon Danielian, who had a chameleonic career last night, went in as Danilova's partner and gave her competent, even expert support, tho as yet he is no full foil for her quicksilver radiance.

Perhaps only Danilova's quivering brilliance, her amazing sense of the staccato, could form the apex of Balanchine's design, for much of it is created in unusual purity by a corps de ballet that almost makes up for what the troupe now lacks in stars. The variations in color were invariably well danced, and that of Tallchief, Magallanes and Moylan had the glow of high spirits held in the leash of style.

These vivid abstractions came as a relief after "The Red Poppy," which makes no more sense this year than last. Considering its banality in this version's turncoat symbolism which changes the villain to the times, perhaps it is best just to concentrate on the dancing—Krassovska's gentle Tai Hoa, Lazowsky's twirling Russian, the ribbon dance now done by Goudovitch, and the leapings of the acrobatic navies, who do their colors credit—or listen to Gliere's score, ably handled by Emanuel Balaban, or even admire Boris Aronson's decor. Anything to keep your mind off that story, which really is a muddle.

"Rodeo" wound up the evening, with Vida Brown and Herbert Bliss new in the leading roles; and if that "no intermission" sign had meant what it said, I could have stayed long enough to tell you about "Bluebird," as danced by the busy Danielian and the not precisely idle Krassovska.

League Seeking $110,000 in Tag Drive Monday

BY KATHRYN LORING.

Chicagoans are being asked to give $110,000 Monday to the city's handicapped and underprivileged children thru the Chicago Children's Benefit league. It will be the league's 37th annual tag day, and more than 10,000 taggers will appear on the streets to ask for individual donations.

The record goal, exceeding by almost $20,000 total collections of last year, has been set to meet increased war time needs and rising costs that are taxing both the efforts and funds of the neighborhood houses, orphanages, free clinics, hospital wards, and other agencies of which the league is comprised. Every penny of each donor's dollar goes in full for charitable purposes, it was explained by Mrs. Harry L. Starkey, league president. Taggers all volunteer their services and receive no financial compensation.

War time youth problems and the care of youngsters whose parents and elder family members either are in service or have taken war jobs face the leagues agencies, Mrs. Starkey pointed out. Many of them have found it necessary to employ staff members to direct recreational programs for boys and girls during after school and evening hours.

Additional aid is being sought for the ever increasing number of youngsters left alone to prepare meals and care for younger members of the family. And, of course, there is no lull in pre-war charitable activities.

One of the oldest tag day charities in the city, the league conducted its first tag day in 1908, and the following year received its charter. Mrs. W. Scott Thurber was its first president, and among other officers at that time was Mrs. Cushman Gifford. Each of its 50 children's charities aided by tag day receipts is endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Officers assisting Mrs. Starkey include Mrs. Henry W. Bernhardt, Mrs. J. T. Arenberg, Mrs. John C. Cannon, Mrs. John J. O'Leary, Mrs. Paul B. Smithson, and Mrs. William Raiser Jr.

Sunset Ridge Harvest.

The Harvest home party of the Sunset Ridge Country club will be held tonight. It will be a dinner dance.

Thru the Looking Glass

When you're packing Christmas boxes for the boys overseas, don't forget to include a few aids to foot comfort. They may not sound like something Santa Claus would carry in his pack, but the boys will welcome them since their duties have made most of them foot conscious. They appreciate anything that alleviates the pedal discomfort they so often experience and prefer practical gifts of this type.

And to help those who might not know what to buy in this line, a noted foot authority has designed a foot comfort kit containing essential items for the soldier's needs, all done up in a package ready for mailing, even down to the label. The kit includes a jar of foot balm, a soothing, refreshing cream to be rubbed on tired tootsies. The cream really works wonders in relieving the burning, tired sensation that comes from hours of standing or walking. Then there is a can of antiseptic foot powder that doubles as a deodorant and helps keep the feet comfortable and dry. Your favorite G. I. will dust this on his feet and in his shoes and feel that he has acquired wings. Then there is a large tube of self-adhering foot plaster that can be cut to cover rubbed spots, callouses, and blisters. This is a genuine blessing for it serves as a soft cushion to protect sensitive spots and can be used to prevent irritation. Finally there is a package of adhesive dressings that the man in service will find handy for any number of uses.

Girls Keep Up on News with Gay Map Scarf

BY REA SEEGER.

Here's a new way to keep track of the men at war! It's a silken scarf, a good yard square, with a map of either the Atlantic or Pacific areas. It is an affair of color and words, with names of towns, rivers, countries, and villages.

It's a glorified map, complete to the time telling clocks synchronized with noon in New York City. Even the well marked maps pinned to office walls, or under glass desk tops, where desk strategists check every move at the end of a day are no more authoritative or well marked than these clever new scarfs.

As a gift idea it can't be equaled . . . many men in the services are buying them as parting mementos, so the girls they leave behind can check the progress of allied armies as they march toward Berlin. These silk maps in scarf form can be hung decoratively against any wall, or they can be worn tied round the neckline in muffler fashion. The colors are heart warming. There are four different colors available for the Pacific area map, and two different color effects for the Atlantic, all giddy, gay, and triumphant.

With a modest price mark tagged on each of these easily read scarf-maps, they are really tempting. The color effects are assured glamor for dark jackets or coats. Or the scarfs can be worn tied cozily around the hip and waist line of skirts or slacks.

They're also big and warm enough to be worn as wind-breaker mufflers, with coats and football clothes.

All women between 20 and 36, their mothers, and their friends are invited to the show, which will feature music by a five piece navy band and songs by the Gobs of Melody, a navy octet formed by a WAVES quartet, the Anchorettes, and a navy quartet.

WAVES personnel will be present to explain new and important navy jobs which women are being called on to fill, and to describe the boot training WAVES receive at the United States Naval Training school in Hunter college, New York City.

Proceeds of the party, which will feature games, cards, rummage and auction sales, and prizes, will go to the purchase of Christmas gifts for service men.

The Chicago unit of the Women's Overseas Service league, of which Mrs. John J. Kelly is president, will have its annual autumn luncheon at 1 p. m. today in the Walnut room of the Marshall Field & Co. store.

Mrs. Albert Dunlap, who recently returned to the United States on the S. S. Gripsholm after 20 years in Shanghai, China, will relate her experiences in the orient. Miss Celia Howard, past president, and Mrs. Charlotte Gordon, past finance chairman, will report on the league's national convention in Cincinnati in July.

The league, whose national president is Chicagoan Sara Frances Jones, includes in its membership women who served in foreign countries in the last war.

The Chicago unit meets every third Monday at 7:30 p. m. in room 200 at 410 S. Michigan av.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 29.—Dinah Shore and George Montgomery came to my house bearing gifts. Dinah, bless her, brought me a bottle of Joy perfume from Paris, France. Her stories are fairy tale stuff. She's so modest about her own part, you have to keep prodding. "Yes, but about you?" Then she'll tell you about having to shove off to keep a singing date at dusk, when nurses gathered 'round to say, "O, must you go? We dug your slit trench ourselves." She spent one night in a French chateau. Its owner, a count, presented her with a needlepoint chair. Said Dinah: "When it arrives, I'll just put it in the middle of my living room and rope it off, as they do in the palace of Versailles." . . . Once in Paris, as she stood with French people cheering our boys as they went by, a G. I. called out in very bad French for her telephone number, just because she was a woman. When she called back, "Crestview 5-4482," the guy nearly fell out of the truck. She made the Ritz in Paris for one day, and licked her chops over the thought of a good, hot bath. She turned on the water, got ready for it, stepped in, and darn near froze to the bottom of the tub! . . . She told of the terrific job Eddie Robinson did. He'd been there only two weeks, but it seems he went everywhere. She met up with Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire. But the real unsung heroes are the U. S. O. units without well known names, who are left behind when the army moves forward. They're picked up later, and keep right on entertaining the boys whenever they have a breathing spell. Dinah said most of our boys can sing the "Marseillaise." "O, Paris!" she sighed as she left me.

Now I've Heard Everything.

Actors may copyright their faces for television. What happens when wrinkles are added? Does that mean another copyright? . . . I will sure miss Fred Othman's moon faced smiling countenance when he takes his O'Sullivans to a Washington beat. . . . Barbara Britton has three leading men in "The Virginian"—Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy, and Sonny Tufts. I wish they'd stuck to their original idea of making it a musical. . . . Bruce Humberstone's next, when he finishes directing "Wonder Man," will be a musical for Twentieth with Alice Faye, Betty Grable, and John Payne, he hopes. The idea for it came from Darryl Zanuck. It's based on music of all nations. . . . Thanks to Jean Negulesco, Doris Sheehan got a speaking role in "Nobody Lives Forever." Incidentally, Geraldine Fitzgerald, playing in that, has a sprained ankle. . . . Mike Miggins, prop man at Metro for many years, will say good-by to his daughter, Beulah. She is to join the WAVES.

Post-War Hope Discussion.

Tom Jenks said it, Sid Skolsky wrote it—that in Quebec, Roosevelt and Churchill were conferring about what to do with Bob Hope after the war. . . . Lauritz Melchior made the biggest splash of the week as he stood by the Metro swimming pool watching Esther Williams. A camera boom swung around and smacked him into the pool. He had to be fished out. . . . Charlie McCarthy heckled thousands of Douglas employes at Long Beach when they rolled their 2,000th Flying Fortress off the line. Their new plane, called the Mystery Bomber [which is the Invader], will be looked over by brass hats from Washington next month. I'm told it's the cat's. Eddie Bracken's take-off on Sinatra singing with his swooners for "Out of This World" is just that. . . . I hope it's not true that Vivien Leigh has lost her baby.

Gathering of Notables.

Nick Schenck will arrive Monday, Spyros Skouras a few days later, and Alex Korda in two weeks. Wesley Ruggles, whose first picture in England is tentatively called "Brophy," will be here soon to line up a cast and have a script written. . . . Harry Von Zell is doing well. In one day he signed on with Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore, and the Fitch Bandwagon, and is about ready to close for a picture. . . . Brenda Marshall is worried about her father since the Philippines are being bombed. He's been a prisoner there since Japs took over. . . . The Jack Oakies are together again. Venita ordered a new hat for Dora Morrison, to replace one which Jack had sat on. . . . What young Hollywood producer who recently arrived in New York is being seen constantly with the young wife of another Hollywood producer who is not so young?

'Seventh Cross' Ranked as One of Better Films

"THE SEVENTH CROSS."

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

"The Seventh Cross" is undeniably one of Hollywood's better productions. In acting, dialogue, settings, and direction it ranks high in any recent list. But somewhere along the line it misses fire.

When seven men escape from a Nazi concentration camp the infuriated commandant orders seven trees stripped in the form of crosses to receive the fugitives, and, one by one, you see the crosses hung with the tortured bodies of the recaptured prisoners. Yet you are comfortably certain all along that the seventh cross will remain empty and that Spencer Tracy will evade the Gestapo and catch the midnight boat to Holland, to the usual orchestral crescendo.

There is also something a little too slick for our taste in the contrast between "good" Germans, who are willing to risk their necks to aid Mr. Tracy's escape, and the evil Nazis. It may be that the German underground operates in just this way—Anna Seegher's novel seemed to convince a good many people that it does—but the news columns to date have offered little evidence to that effect.

Great acclaim will doubtless be lavished on Spencer Tracy for his portrayal of the hapless fugitive, tho when you get down to brass tacks he doesn't have much to do but move ponderously and look harried and benumbed. We could have felt sorrier for him if he had been permitted just once to state articulately what had happened to him and why he hates the Nazis. But he remains the strong, silent type, who bears his cross even as he escapes it.

Round and about, however, there is an impressive amount of good, sound acting. Hume Cronyn as a little man what now, with a streak of nobility in him, is just about perfect, as is his fictional [and real] spouse, Jessica Tandy. Signe Hasso as the little waitress who helps Tracy give the Gestapo the final slip, the while offering him a fleeting moment of love, is poised and attractive, obviously not destined for long to remain in bit parts. The others—Gestapo, escaped prisoners, members of the underground—are all finely differentiated types. The one we'll remember longest is Agnes Moorehead, who brings to her one scene as a suspicious shopkeeper more suspense than all the rest of the picture offers.

SIZES

Back buttoning sets this two-piece costume apart from the more ordinary versions of the skirt and jacket combination. The front of the jacket has a naive simplicity which is charming with the "little girl" hats being worn this season. The collar of the blouse is detachable for laundering. Style No. 2534 is designed for sizes 12 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard contrasting.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Bishop Randall Observes Consecration Anniversary

The Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION.

What episode in your grandparents' life seems interesting to you?

WHERE ASKED.

Merchandise Mart.

THE ANSWERS.

Alice Gokenholz, interviewer, 4349 N. Tripp av.—My grandfather was a sailor back when men were iron and ships were wood. He sailed around the Cape of Good Hope seven times. Because he knew a few magic tricks some natives of Africa once wanted to make him their king. They offered to trade a horse for him.

Mrs. W. Susanke, housewife, 4943 N. Hamlin av.—When my grandmother was a little girl she went to see Abraham Lincoln when he was laid out in the courthouse before his burial. My grandparents both went thru the Chicago fire, too. They lost everything they had in the fire, even the title to their property.

Mrs. F. Langer, housewife, 4246 N. Mason av.—After the Civil war my grandmother was left a war widow. She had an excellent education for a girl of her time. She became a seamstress and sewed several garments for Stephen Foster. She was baptized in the winter and they had to break the ice in the Ohio river.

H. S. Lee, salesman, Los Angeles, Cal.—In the first place, grandfather lived to be 99. He was a pioneer in the mountains of Tennessee. His people originally settled in Virginia. Before he died, just 12 miles from the spot in which he settled as a pioneer, there was a town with around 40 or 50 thousand inhabitants.

John F. Abel, student, 1250 Rosemont av.—Around 1900 my grandmother and grandfather were both playing on the stage. He was playing in a band and she was an actress. That's where they met each other. In those days there were fewer entertainers, no such things as radio or movies, and they were always busy.

Robert B. Anderson, hearings referee, 4140 Newport av.—At the age of 26 my grandfather was married, had two children, and lived in Scotland. He decided to come to America and settle in the middle west. He ran a farm at Halsted st. and Jackson blvd. It seems strange that a short time ago Chicago was in its infancy.

Child Needs Companions of Own Age

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I watch that young girl and her mother pass the house almost every afternoon," said a woman to her friend. "Do you know them?"

"Yes, I know them well," answered the friend, "and I'm so troubled about Elaine. She is 11 years old and I don't believe she has ever been allowed to have a real friend of her own age.

"Her father has to be away a great deal on business, and her mother seems to demand every minute of the child's time, apart from school hours. It's unfair, and certainly not a normal life for a child to lead, but nobody seems able to make her mother see it in that light . . ."

Of course love, friendship, and companionship should exist between parents and children, but never to such a degree that it deprives the youngsters of the companionship of children of their own age. Parents shouldn't selfishly try to monopolize a child's affections.

In the early years, home, mother, and father will satisfy most of a child's needs. But when he makes his first tentative steps away from home, he has started on an exploration beyond its boundaries, and these excursions into the world are necessary for his normal development.

Love, friendship, and companionship can and should exist between parents and their children. A boy may love to go on a fishing trip with his father or on a walk thru the woods with his mother. A young daughter may like to go to a concert with her father or make cookies with her mother. A shared interest in the same hobby can be a real and important thing. They can and should be real friends, but not to the exclusion of other friendships and with children of their own age.

Now what do I want for my birthday?
A slice of the moon will do;
As sensible, dear, as my real wish,
The one which would bring me to you.
So send me a bowl full of star dust,

If these can't be found in a gift shop,
Then bring me a dream that comes true. CULLIE.

When Generations Meet.

The bobby socks have come—and gone. The summer time influx of junior white collar girls has left us, in our office, secretly wondering. We are wondering just what they really thought of us; we're not quite sure what we really thought of them.

When generations meet—in an office—there are adjustments on both sides. We who had long been in business had to practice patience; many times we were in the position of the mother who finds it quicker—and simpler—to do something herself than to explain it to a youngster. We had to practice self-control; it's easy to grow bossy when you're the one who gives directions. We had to hold onto our sense of humor in the midst of youthful chatter. But we did get a full immersion in enthusiasm and high spirits!

What did the junior white collar girls, now back at school, think of us? Did they find us tired—jaded—exacting? Fortunately not. With school interests uppermost in their minds almost all of the girls have found time to get in touch with us, which makes us feel that when generations meet—in an office—it need not be TNT. Kitchen Pointers
—By Mary Meade—

"Like many others I'm short of sugar. How may honey and corn sirup be substituted in baking?"

You may replace sugar with honey, corn sirup, or maple sirup cup for cup if you wish, but better results are obtained, particularly in cake making, if only half the sugar is replaced. Be sure to reduce the liquid slightly when using honey or sirup. If sugar is replaced with honey cup for cup, use one-half the amount of liquid called for; if corn sirup is used, reduce liquid by one-third. In using molasses, follow the same rule as for corn sirup, but reduce the baking powder and use ½ teaspoon soda for each cup of molasses.

"I made your famous grape jam last year—the one with 4 cups of grapes and 3 cups of sugar—and had wonderful results. This year I tripled the recipe and the jam didn't thicken. What do you suppose is the reason for this?"

The recipe should be used as given and not even doubled. When the jam is cooked in batches that are too large, evaporation does not take place rapidly enough and the 20 minutes boiling time called for is not sufficient to thicken the jam. Longer cooking time would eventually give the desired thickness but with a sacrifice of the fresh grape flavor and bright purple color of the jam. So for best results make this grape jam in small batches. The same rule applies to all jam and jelly making.

"I cut out your recipe for the delicious looking fruit cake given in step by step picture form the other day. I'm wondering what kind of wine would be best to use in the cake. Also I'm interested in the reason for placing a pan of water in the oven when baking the cake."

You may use any kind of dry or sweet wine which you have on hand—also brandy or fruit liqueur. If you are buying wine especially for use in this cake, purchase a sweet sherry or port wine. The pan of water is used to create steam in the oven to keep the cakes moist.

STEPHEN KELLY GAS RATION QUIZ STIRS A MYSTERY

School Board Authorized Less than Was Issued.

It was up to the Illinois joint legislative petroleum commission last night to determine whether Stephen Kelly, brother of the mayor, used only the gasoline for 900 miles a month to which he was entitled by his school board job or whether he received gasoline for more than 1,400 miles a month as charged by two, former employes of office of administration ration board 48.

Testimony of the two women was to the effect that gasoline for 13,100 miles of driving was supplied in about nine months to Kelly, who is a supervising engineer for the schools. The witnesses said the period covered was from Aug. 17, 1943, to May 20, 1944.

Big Difference Unexplained.

John Howatt, chief engineer for the school board, said yesterday that Kelly and all the other supervisors got thru his office C books good for 900 miles a month. Howatt said he had not approved any supplementary ration for Kelly. No explanation was forthcoming for the discrepancy between the ration of 900 miles a month approved by the chief engineer and that which the witnesses said the OPA granted.

Further information on ration board 48's dealings with Kelly and possibly other politicians will be sought, the commission's chairman, State Sen. Nicholas Hubbard [R., Mount Pulaski], announced. He said he had instructed George E. Arthur, Atty. Gen. Barrett's special assistant assigned to the commission, to ask Rae E. Walters, regional director of the office of price administration, to appear before the commission early next month.

Information on Quiz Sought.

Particularly, said Sen. Hubbard, Walters will be asked about an investigation he was reported to have ordered into charges made by Mrs. Vera E. Robinson, 1035 North Shore av., and Mrs. Margaret Beverly Weaver, 1331 Loyola av. Both were employed by board 48 at 5004 Broadway until recently, when, they said, they felt impelled to resign by the irregularities they had observed.

The women said they told their stories to Walters last July and that Walters, after admitting he knew their stories were true, ordered an investigation. Nothing ever came of it, they said, except that they became "as popular as polecats at a tea party" for making the reports.

The board is headed by Martin J. Maloney. Paul A. H. Schults, under whose jurisdiction it operated at the time of the alleged irregularities, subsequently resigned as acting Chicago area administrator of OPA.

Shakedown to Be Sifted.

Hubbard, who characterized the witnesses' stories as "the most amazing I have heard," said the state commission wants to ask Walters not only what his inquiry showed, but also what, if anything, he did about the charges.

He said he wished to ask Walters whether he took any action on Mrs. Robinson's proof that she was assessed $1.50 a month out of her salary and overtime pay of $146 by the 49th ward Democratic organization, headed by Ald. Keenan, ward committeeman, thru which she obtained her job.

Mrs. Robinson testified she saw a ledger 8 inches wide, 12 inches long, and approaching a foot in thickness, in Keenan's downtown office at 33 N. La Salle st., in which are kept records of monthly assessments of 1 per cent plus against Democratic payrollers.

Saw Statements Prepared.

"Some men were making out statements" to other payrollers from the big book when she paid her first bill of $2.25 for February and part of January this year, the witness declared.

Another point into which Hubbard said he wishes to inquire is the women's testimony that for three weeks they made a survey of business and professional men within the board's jurisdiction at Maloney's direction. The women protested they might get into trouble for doing political canvassing while on the federal pay roll.

Later she added, Maloney made use of the "survey" he had ordered them to make as an excuse to get them transferred on the ground that they had "embarrassed" the board.

Board Sidesteps on Files.

Maloney, who denied Kelly or any other politician had been favored with extra gas, said that his board had decided to let the metropolitan area office of the OPA deal with developments. It had been suggested that his denial could be substantiated by opening the files on Kelly's gas rations, but he said the board had agreed to leave that to higher authority.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Sept. 29, 1944.

THE farm had several rains last week that slowed down field operations but proved beneficial in other respects. More rains are needed to soften the ground and facilitate fall plowing.

The rains put a temporary halt to the job of combining the clover field for its seed. Work on this job has been progressing slowly as the men have been able to work in the field for only a few hours each afternoon. It takes all morning with a good sun to take the dew off the plants so they will be dry enough to thresh well. So far more than seven bushels of seed have been harvested.

Rains Soften Ground.

The rain also stopped preparation of land for wheat seeding. The men have been whipping 11 acres into shape to receive the seed, and have planted 15 acres. The rain was a boon to the seeded acres. The moisture helped soften the ground and facilitate germination. It also served to dilute the fertilizer and wash it into the ground where it will be more readily available to the seeds.

There was a sudden splurge of activity around the Shorthorn cattle barn last week as four new calves put in their appearance. The new arrivals were two heifers and two bull calves. The heifers are nice tidy looking animals and should prove a good addition to the breeding herd. One of the bulls was the largest calf the men have seen in some time. It weighed close to 125 pounds. The other calves weighed from 90 to 100 pounds. All of the dams came thru in good style, and the herdsman is expecting another cow to calve in a few days.

Insecticide Proves Worth.

A check of the dairy barn where experiments are being carried out with DDT, the new army insecticide, presents several interesting facts. First, another application of the spray is indicated. The initial dose given the walls and ceilings more than a month ago is beginning to lose its effectiveness. In the mornings now the men find quite a few flies still alive where previously all of them were killed by the overnight contact with the spray.

The herdsman is well pleased with the results of this first test for it indicates a longevity of a month in the spray's effectiveness where most insecticides last only an hour or two. The barn will be given another spraying shortly, and from past performance this should last until the end of the fly season.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THIS is the ideal time of the year for gardeners to start building a compost pile if they do not have one. There is much waste foliage coming from the kitchen now that housewives are canning final crops of beets, carrots, and other vegetables, and gardeners cleaning up their plots in preparation for fall spading will have bean vines and similar matter. All of this waste foliage, in addition to raked leaves and grass clippings, can be mixed in the compost pile.

When thoroly decayed, this compost serves as the best possible substitute for animal manure for fertilizing the garden and for improving the texture of clay soils or sandy soils.

A portable wooden compost frame, described in this space yesterday, makes a convenient compost receptacle because the decayed vegetation can be shoveled easily from the bottom of the frame. A simple fenced enclosure can be utilized until a frame or pit can be prepared.

ONCE A MONTH, OLIVE OIL; ONCE A YEAR, BLOOMS

A plant that combines huge, lovely blossoms with a heady fragrance and a desire to bloom in the wee small hours once each year was on view briefly early yesterday at the home of Gordon B. Olson, 18544 Dundee rd., Flossmoor.

The plant, a night blooming cereus, is known botanically as Epiphyllum oxypetalum. To Barbara Ann, the small daughter of the Olsons, it is a treasured annual wonder enhanced by permission to stay up late.

The four foot plant has been in the family for 25 years and formerly was owned by Mrs. Olson's father, who received it as a cutting from a neighbor who obtained it in Honolulu. The leaves of the plant are washed once each week and it gets a small glass of olive oil once a month.

The blooms, which appear at midnight, eight inches across, are gone by morning. Their appearance is heralded at 6 o'clock in the evening by a shaking and quivering of the leaves.

NEW DEAL DROPS ELECTION PERIOD GAS BOOST: REED

Purpose of Plan Held 'Too Obvious.'

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—A New Deal scheme to increase motorists' gasoline rations by more than 12 million gallons daily for several weeks prior to the Nov. 7 election, and to take away the allowance after election, has been scrapped because of its obvious political implications, Sen. Reed [R., Kas.] disclosed in an interview today.

Reed said he had been told by a state highway superintendent who attended a meeting called in Washington last week by Col. J. Monroe Johnson, defense transportation director, that Johnson had told 20 highway patrol directors 300,000 barrels of additional gasoline daily would be available "immediately."

According to Reed's informant, Johnson asked the state highway representatives to recommend an increase in the war time 35-mile-an-hour speed limit and to make suggestions as to whom the extra gasoline should be allocated.

Johnson told the meeting, Reed's informant said, that Secretary of Commerce Ickes' petroleum administration for war had told Johnson 300,000 barrels of gasoline, totaling 12,600,000 gallons, had to be disposed of daily. But Johnson was reported t. have said it might be necessary to take away the extra allowance within 60 days—or shortly after the election.

"It has been common gossip," Reed said, "that the New Dealers wanted to pull a smart stunt before the election. But the gasoline plan apparently has blown up because it was too obviously a political move designed to gain votes for the administration."

Johnson acknowledged yesterday he had discussed the distribution of 300,000 extra barrels of gasoline daily with state highway patrol directors, but said he was merely "speculating" on what would happen after the defeat of Germany. He said he had no extra gas to allot now, indicating, Reed said, that Ickes had withdrawn his proposed largesse.

It was reported that the state highway patrol directors had suggested giving A card motorists 160,000 of the 300,000 barrels daily, 125,000 barrels to B and C card holders, and the 15,000 barrel balance to commercial users.

Earlier this week, Reed had urged doubling the ration of A card motorists because, he said, gasoline in storage had increased 9 million gallons in the last year. Ickes last night branded Reed's plan as "thoroly mischievous."

Father Tosses Two of Sons Into River; One Is Drowned

Coshocton, O., Sept. 29 (AP). — A young father who Prosecutor Russel E. Lyons said admitted dropping two of his four small sons into Mohican river rather than see them live without a home, sat in a cell reading a Bible tonight.

Warren Patterson.

One of the boys drowned, the other crawled out to safety. Lyons said the other two were left under a tree half a mile away with only a blanket to protect them from a cold rain.

Lyons said he would file a murder charge tomorrow against the father, Warren Patterson, 31.

Traced to Broken Home.

The prosecutor traced the tragedy to a broken home. Patterson related, Lyons said, that he and his wife separated two months ago and he assumed custody of their sons three weeks later. Mrs. Patterson was arrested today at Ashland, the couple's home, on a charge of abandonment.

Lyons said Patterson told him this story in a signed statement:

After assuming custody of the sons, he found it difficult to care for them and still keep his job as machinist in a plant at Ashland. He asked the Ashland Probate court to place them in a home. The request was denied.

Patterson became "frantic" because he could not provide a home for his boys. So Wednesday morning he put them in his automobile and drove to Coshocton.

About midnight, he came to the bridge crossing the small Mohican river and stopped the car on it. He told the children to sleep. It was raining.

10 Feet Into Water.

Finally he got out, took Larry, 1½, and Raymond, 7, to the railing of the bridge. He dropped them 10 feet into the water.

"I made up my mind to get rid of them all, but I lost my nerve," Patterson said. So he got into the car and drove down the road. Stopping again, he took his 8 year old twins, Gene and Glenn, from the car, placed them under a tree in a field, left a blanket, and departed.

Larry drowned, and his body was recovered yesterday. Raymond fell into shallow water. He crawled to shore, then wandered around most of the night before Charles Fessler, an oil driller, picked him up. The twins were found late yesterday, still under the tree where their father had left them.

Patterson was arrested while sleeping in the rear of his automobile near the machine shop where he worked in Ashland.

KELLY MACHINE UNDER ATTACK IN GAS FAVORITISM

Political favoritism in the issuance of supplemental gasoline was condemned as "arrogant evidence of the domination of the Kelly machine" at a Republican rally in the 41st ward Republican headquarters at 5525 Milwaukee av. yesterday. Charges of such favoritism were made Thursday before a joint state legislative committee. Mayor Kelly's brother, Stephen Kelly, was accused of getting, in one instance, gas rations for 1,800 miles to visit his sick wife in Batavia, 30 miles from Chicago.

"Every army jeep and truck in Chicago could be driven to Batavia on that allowance," said Leo Carr, Republican nominee for sheriff. "All political favorites of the Kelly machine constantly get handouts and favors. Thus we have in the county a local version of Roosevelt's 'Clear it with Sidney' [Sidney Hillman], only ours is 'Clear it with Kelly.'"

John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, brought a laugh from the 350 persons who packed the hall, with his parting remark, "I have other meetings to attend, and since I'm not Kelly's brother, I have to leave early so I can drive slowly and thus save gasoline."

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 29.—Every one of a sports turn of mind in this college town, seat of the University of Michigan, seems to be worried about one thing or another.

Coach Herbert O. [Fritz] Crisler of the Wolverines, Western conference co-champions with Purdue, is fearful that his charges are due for a let-down tomorrow as they open their Big Nine title defense against Coach A. N. [Bo] McMillin's Indiana Hoosiers in the Michigan stadium.

Squad Worries About Tigers.

The football squad, one of the most inexperienced that Michigan has had in years, already has chalked up victories over the Iowa Seahawks and the Marquette Hilltoppers, but the players, too, are worried. It is not, however, about the result of the impending football game. Their concern right now is how the Detroit Tigers are faring in their battle for the American league pennant and how many hits their former fellow student, Dick Wakefield, gets as the baseball season draws to a close.

With Crisler worried about his boys and his boys worried about Wakefield and the Tigers, the populace, as a natural result, is worried about the Hoosier invasion. McMillin always provides serious moments whether he has a strong club or not and this season the gray thatched Indiana coach has collected a flashy, tho also inexperienced, squad which showed a lot of scoring tricks in its Big Nine opener against Illinois last Saturday. Despite a 26 to 18 defeat, Indiana was very much in the game until the closing minutes.

Wolverines Possess Speed.

Crisler has more cause for worry than a possible letdown after beating the Seahawks, 12 to 7, and Marquette, 14 to 0, for in the latter affair the Michigan backs fumbled eight times and on five occasions lost the ball. Nevertheless, in Bob Nussbaumer, a marine trainee, and Gene Derricotte, a civilian and the only Negro ever to play in a Michigan back field, Crisler has two of the fastest ball carriers in the conference. He also has developed a fine passing combination in Bill Culligan and Dick Rifenberg, the lads who have accounted for three of the four touchdowns the Wolverines have made this season.

Crisler is prepared to see his squad work all tomorrow afternoon against passes, for Indiana has the superlative pitching pair, Bob Hoernschemeyer and Ben Raimondi. The former was the nation's leading passer in 1943 on the basis of 44 completions out of 97 attempts in six conference games, an average of 99.8 yards per game.

McMillin can also parade a fine group of running backs in Bob Miller, Abe Addams, George Sundheim, and Harry Jagade who averaged four yards a try against Illinois.

PEP WINS OVER WRIGHT; RETAINS FEATHER TITLE

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., retained his New York version of the featherweight championship tonight, jabbing his way to a 15 round victory over Albert [Chalky] Wright of Los Angeles in Madison Square Garden. Pep weighed 125¼ pounds, Wright 125½.

The decision was unanimous as the Connecticut dancing master held command all the way with his pistonlike left and his dazzling speed. Wright, from whom Pep took the championship in a 15 rounder Nov. 20, 1942, tried hard for a knockout—the only way he had a chance to win—but Pep was too elusive a target.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE National Committee on Physical Fitness, operating as a branch of the Federal Security agency, has come a long way in organization since its inception a year and a half ago. . . . It has won the coöperation of the American Medical association. . . . It has gained the active aid of many of the best minds in education, industry, and athletics. . . . It is steadily bringing the public to the point of view that war memorials should take the form of sports fields, gymnasiums, playgrounds, or some other kind of tribute to the nation's dead that will be beneficial to the living. . . . The greatest progress, in the opinion of this department, was achieved at this week's meeting in Chicago with the decision that a country can't legislate health. . . . Young men and young women, as well as those of middle age, are not going to engage in exercise primarily because they know it will keep them fit for their jobs. . . . They will participate in games or other types of physical exertion wholeheartedly only if it's fun. . . . We will have a healthier America when the people believe it is fun to keep physically fit. . . . Millions of men and women will spend part of their leisure this winter in bowling alleys, not because the exercise therein will be healthful, but because they enjoy the competition. . . . The same holds for skating, boxing, basketball, and the many other athletic activities which have helped make America the most resourceful nation in the world.

Brig. Gen. Carlos Romulo, last man off Bataan, who was promoted from the rank of colonel this week, has thrilled thousands of Americans with his inspiring talks about the heroics of the few thousand Yanks and 75,000 loyal Filipinos who held 250,000 Japs at bay for four months, but he says his greatest thrill in his tour of the United States came at Notre Dame, where he received an honorary degree of doctor of laws. . . . A young student eyed him intently during his talk. . . . As he concluded his remarks the collegian yelled, "Hey, Colonel, you ought to stay here and play half back." . . . Gen. Romulo, who is 43 years old, said his boyhood ambition was to be a football player at Notre Dame. . . . Comdr. Gene Tunney, who will operate the Baltimore club of the All-America Football conference, probably has inducted more football players into the navy than any other individual. . . . Ray Ryan, owner of the New York franchise in the same organization, jokingly told Tunney in New York the other night: "None of the rest of us will have a chance to beat Baltimore for several years after the war. You can keep players in the navy until they promise to play for Baltimore." . . . Lt. John Beazley, star pitcher of the 1943 St. Louis Cardinals who is now a special service officer with the air transport command in Hawaii, says Ted Williams had a shade on Joe DiMaggio at the plate. . . . Jimmy Segreti, on leave from the Tribune sports department and attached to the 9th naval district public relations staff, has been promoted to chief petty officer. . . . Lt. Don Budge, injured in physical training at the Yuma [Arizona] air field, has gone to his parents' home in Oakland, Cal., to recuperate.

To set my soul at rest;

Because it's always near.

But there are dresser drawers to clean,

And from these homely tasks I glean

G. I. Joe Writes Home.

You say the new bridge is super—well, That is okay; in fact, it's swell.
You tell me the airport work is humming
And a lot more things are up and coming.
That's grand—I mean the new things we'll find,
But we'd much rather hear [and I know you don't mind]
When we return on that day so fair:
Will the old familiar things still be there?

Will "Brownie's" popcorn stall still stand
On the corner of 9th on our way to the Grand?
Will "Sully," the cop, be at 8th and Main,
Like he always was, come sunshine or rain?
Will the 5th street Coney Island still
Be on deck to dish out whatever we will
When we've made the rounds and want to be fed
A last little snack on our way home to bed?

Here's another thing I wish you'd tell,
Are the chairs still in front of the Merchants' hotel,
Where we'd "rag" for hours 'bout the baseball game
And if we had lost try to pin on the blame?
Shall we still be able a swim to take?
Don't tell me they've filled in O'Leary's lake!
Do the dance bands still come to Melody Mill,
Where I copped the prize waltz away from Bill?

P. S.

Does Karl Page still give with that swell T-bone steak?
If he does, that's the very first stop I'll make—
The new things you write of are passing fair,
But will the old familiar things still be there?

The College All-Star coach of 1943 and the fellow who had the same function last month will sit on opposite sidelines in Dyche stadium today wishing for some of that wonderful material. But they'll have to get along with navy trainees, 4-Fs, and sub-draft age youngsters, which makes everything even.

Harry Stuhldreher, master of the '43 All-Stars, is showing his Wisconsin Badgers for the first time this season and he will be just as anxious to see what they do under the pressure of meeting Northwestern as will the 30,000 spectators. Lynn Waldorf, who headed the '44 All-Star staff, saw 50 of his more than 80 squadmen rout DePauw university last week, 62 to 0, but no one considers this a test of what the Wildcats will do in Western conference competition.

Badgers Have Series Edge.

Many of the 30,000 will recall the last time Stuhldreher brought the Badgers to Evanston. This was in 1942—the year the Wildcats' 3 to 0 victory over Texas in the first game of the season was their only success. The Wildcats led the 1942 Badgers, 19 to 14, as to play went into the final minute. With 20 seconds left, Len Seelinger, a Wisconsin substitute, fired a touchdown pass to Mark Hoskins for a 20 to 19 triumph.

Last season, Northwestern whipped a weak Wisconsin eleven, 41 to 0, but the Wildcats still trail in the series which started in 1890, 14 to 11. Four other games were ties.

Girard Is Wisconsin Star.

Most highly ballyhooed of today's competitors is Earl [Jug] Girard, an 18 year old all-around back from Marinette, Wis. In the Badgers' scrimmages, Girard, who weighs 170 pounds, has been a standout runner and passer. The young man also kicks.

For Northwestern, stocky Johnny Yungwirth from Fond du Lac, Wis., may do the main prowling in Wisconsin territory. He will start at left half where most of the team's running and passing originates. Against DePauw he completed five of nine passes, two for touchdowns. Bruce Bairstow of Waukegan and Bill Roper of Napa, Cal., will spell Yungwirth. Bob Funderburg, at full back, and Hank Altepeter, right half, are veterans of last year's team. The starting quarter back will be Bill Brophy, a 200 pound freshman. Red Clawson and Ben Schadler, of the 1943 team, are out with injuries.

55,000 TO SEE NOTRE DAME IN OPENER AT PITT

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 29.—Twenty-five Notre Dame football players, the first section of a squad of 35, arrived this morning and at 2 p. m. went thru their final drill in the University of Pittsburgh stadium, where tomorrow 55,000 spectators will watch the 13th game in the series between these rivals. Two hours after the Irish workout the Pitt squad of 75 held its final rehearsal under Coach Clark Shaughnessy.

Ed McKeever, head coach of the Irish, and Hughie Devore brought the Notre Dame civilian players, four of whom are down for starting assignments tomorrow in the opening contest of the university's 56th season of football. McKeever is substituting for Lt. Frank Leahy of the navy, but it is not the first time he has served as pinch hitter. Two years ago, when Leahy was floored by illness, McKeever directed the Irish to three consecutive victories.

Navy Contingent Arrives Today.

Assistant Coach Adam Walsh, captain and center of the 1924 Notre Dame national championship eleven, will arrive tomorrow morning with 10 Navy trainees who are limited by regulation to 48 hours' absence from their base. These players drilled at Notre Dame today.

Pitt came thru its first test of the campaign last Saturday with a 26 to 13 victory over West Virginia. While this was a most satisfactory begining, Shaughnessy insists that, barring great good fortune, his young men will not defeat the Irish. This is a strategically favorable position for the gray haired coach, since he also admits that a victory is not completely beyond reach of his earnest players. McKeever, sincerely is concerned over the outcome, not only because this Notre Dame squad obviously is far below the standard of last season's national champions, but because of his responsibility as substitute for Leahy.

Both Have Aces in Reserve.

Bob Kelly, right half back, who is a Navy man, is the only player who may be termed a 1943 regular. Three other lettermen, John Adams and George Sullivan, 1943 substitute

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Great Lakes' Bluejackets, whose 1944 gridiron flagship already carries two victory notches, this afternoon will be prepared to repel a University of Illinois boarding crew before a crowd of 25,000 sailors at Ross field, home football yard of the naval training center. The attacking party will be out to avenge a 6 to 0 licking handed them by the sailors in 1942. There will be the further incentive of squaring accounts for the dramatic 29 to 26 victory which Ohio State scored over Illinois in Columbus last year.

The Bluejackets' new tutor, Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, who coached Ohio State before coming to Great Lakes this season, has a high regard for the professorial talents of Ray Eliot, the Illinois coach. Lt. Brown's esteem still held true last evening, despite the fact that the Fighting Illini arrived here shortly before 5 p. m. sans the services of Sam Zatkoff and Jim Ellison, not to mention a casualty list that numbered six.

Two Victories Apiece.

Both teams have followed the same scoring career in their first two games. The sailors ran off from the late Fort Sheridan eleven by 62 to 0, then last Saturday defeated a fine Purdue eleven, 27 to 18. The Illini, after emerging from a 79 to 0 track meet against Illinois Normal, had just as much of a problem last week, rallying from a 12 to 0 deficit to beat Indiana's Hoosiers, 26 to 18.

Coach Eliot and his 36 young men landed at the 12th street station last night, before going on to the Moraine hotel in Highland Park, in a rather unhappy mood. They knew on Thursday that Zatkoff, scheduled acting game captain, and Ellison, slated as a starting guard, were out for the season. Their eviction was due to a navy order barring members of a ship's company from playing on a university team.

Six Illini Linemen Injured.

This would seem to be enough source of misery, but the Illini also numbered six injured linemen, including Guards Larry Forst and Art Demeter; Centers George Bujan and Emil Tomanek, and End Fred Jacobelt and Bill Perry. The center famine was such that Eliot reached deep into his reserves for a player he regards as the shortest workman in the conference—5 foot 4 inch Ed Palleria, Hamden, Conn., freshman.

Detroit Beats Senators, 5-2; Loses 2d, 9 to 2

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP).—The last place Washington Senators, splitting a double header today with the Detroit Tigers before 17,606 fans, knocked out Paul [Dizzy] Trout in four innings of their 9 to 2 second game victory after the Tigers had taken the opener, 5 to 2.

The even break forced Detroit to share the American league lead with the St. Louis Browns.

Haefner Yields 12 Hits, Wins.

Washington, beaten by Ruffus Gentry in the opener for its 16th loss to the Tigers in 19 games this year, hammered Trout for six runs and six hits in sending him to his 13th defeat against 27 victories. Lefthander Milt Haefner, tho he yielded 12 hits, coasted to his 12th victory after being staked to a 6 to 0 lead.

The Senators, taking their second decision in nine appearances in Briggs stadium, banged out a dozen hits off four Tiger pitchers. Stan Spence, with his 12th homer good for three runs in the third, drove in four in this game.

York Starts with Triple.

Detroit, battling to hold its edge over the Browns, made seven hits off Johnny Niggeling count for five runs in the first game, knocking him out of the contest in the eighth inning. Gentry, giving up 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings, gave way to Johnny Gorsica in the eighth but received credit for his 12th victory.

Rudy York's triple drove home a Tiger score in the first inning, and Gentry held the edge until he made a wild pitch which sent the tying run across in the sixth. Detroit sewed it up with three runs in the seventh on four hits.

Hal Newhouser, with 28 games won and 9 lost, will pitch for the Tigers tomorrow, opposing Alex Carrasquel. Carrasquel has won 8 while losing 6.

White Sox Get 1 in 10th; Beat Red Sox, 4 to 3

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox beat the Red Sox 4 to 3 in the 10th inning last night in Comiskey park, thereby averting a lapse into a tie for seventh place, and keeping the Bostonese from clinching fourth place.

For six and a third innings, Clem Dreisewerd held the Chicago Sox hitless, the Boston Sox accomplishing all their runs before Jim Dykes' lads made a safe hit. Then Chicago tied the score in the seventh and won with two out in the 10th.

Grey Clarke, the portly third baseman, who was a last minute nominee over Ralph Hodgin, was the heavy man in Chicago's five hit attack. Clarke made the first Chicago hit of the game and touched off the tying salvo in that session and it was his hit which sent Thornton Lee home with the winning run in the 10th.

Lee went all the way to accomplish his third victory of the season. He yielded only four hits but was pestered by four errors, two of which bloomed into Boston runs.

The teams will play a single game this afternoon and a double header tomorrow.

ST. LOUIS WINS, 4-1, 1-0; ENDS CHAMPS' HOPES

Race to Be Decided on Final Day.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29 [Special]. — The unpredictable St. Louis Browns had their biggest day in the club's history today. They whipped the Yankees twice, eliminating the New Yorkers from the American league pennant race, and tied the Detroit Tigers for the lead with two games left to play. Thus, the championship cannot be decided until Sunday, the last day of the season.

Mel Queen, rookie right hander, will start for the Yankees tomorrow. He will be opposed by Dennis Galehouse.

Pitchers Are Just Too Good.

Jack Kramer let the faded world champions down with eight hits to win the opener, 4 to 1, and Nelson Potter came up with a six hit job in the second to triumph, 1 to 0, despite the brilliant performance of New York's Hank Borowy. Hank yielded only two hits and the first of these, a double by Don Gutteridge in the first inning, led to the only run of the contest. Gutteridge took third on a wild pitch and romped home as Frank Crosetti tossed out Mike Kreevich.

REMAINING GAMES.
Detroit—Home, Washington [2].
St. Louis—Home, New York [2].

Potter was in a tough spot in the ninth inning, when Nick Etten walked, took second on an infield out, and stayed there while Oscar Grimes flied to Kreevich. Then old Paul Waner, the ex-National league war horse, stepped to the plate with fire in his eye to swing for Mike Garbark. Paul rifled a liner toward center field, but Gutteridge, playing back on the grass, leaped for the ball and pulled it down with one hand to end the threat and the game.

First Is Fairly Easy.

The Yankees gave Ernie Bonham a one run margin in the first inning of the first game, but the Browns came back with two in the third, then clinched the decision with another pair in the eighth inning.

BRAVES' HOMERS BEAT CUBS AND GASSAWAY, 5-1

Game in Boston Draws Only 501 Cash Fans.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 29.—The Cubs seemed to have that homesick feeling today so didn't exert themselves while opening, in company with the Braves, the final series of the season. Being in no mood for work, the Chicagoans—that is, what remains after various members had begged off for the waning days of the campaign—succumbed to the locals by 5 to 1 before a quiet gathering of 501 paying guests and almost as many service men.

The Braves made the job simple for themselves after discovering that there was a home run pitch in the repertoire of Charley Gassaway, the southpaw recently brought up from Milwaukee by the Cubs. Because of his wildness and some singles they managed to pick up lone runs in the second and third but sighted the round trip throws in the fourth, long drives by Tommy Holmes and Chuck Workman sailing out of the park for three runs that flattened the Cubs for keeps.

The Cubs seldom do anything of account against Nate Andrews and this occasion was no exception. During the first five innings of his 16th triumph of the season he yielded only two hits but relaxed in the sixth, the results being singles by Roy Hughes and Andy Pafko, the former scoring.

CUBS GET NEW PITCHER FROM BOSTON BRAVES

The Cubs yesterday obtained George Woodend, right handed pitcher, on waivers from the Boston Braves, General Manager James Gallagher's office announced. Woodend was with Syracuse in the International league this season and won eight games while losing 14 as the Chiefs finished in last place.

Mack Stewart, Cub relief pitcher, will enter Illinois Masonic hospital today for an appendectomy, the club office also announced.

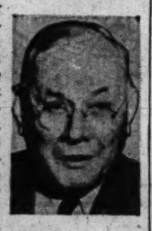
EXPECT DELAY IN REVISION OF WAGE FORMULA

Report F.D.R. Says Change Is Needed.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt conferred today with his labor advisory committee of AFL and CIO leaders and left with some of them, at least, the conviction that wage ceilings will not be disturbed before the November election.



William Green.

The President agreed, it was reported, that the Little Steel formula will have to be revised or eliminated eventually, but as to the timing of that step he gave them nothing which they would call a commitment.

Election Angle Discussed.

The big point of speculation has been the political implications of a change in wage controls and its timing with respect to the coming election. Mr. Roosevelt, it was reported, discussed this angle at the conference, but there was no official announcement of what he said.

Some of the conferees said the President appeared to be thinking in terms of holding the line until just before the big cutbacks in war production are ordered and then permitting increases in base rates to make up for some of the losses in earnings which naturally result when the work week is shortened.

How this would be accomplished was not made clear and the conferees thought that perhaps the President had not yet clarified it entirely to his own satisfaction.

[The Little Steel formula limits general increases for purposes of compensating for higher living costs to 15 per cent of the average hourly earnings paid in January, 1941. Other bases for increases are substandard wages and area inequities.]

Pending Before WLB.

AFL President William Green told newsmen "we are faced with the fact that the problem is pending before the war labor board and nothing can be done until the matter is disposed of there."

The board plans to begin consideration of cases involving overall wage policy on Oct. 9. If the board decides that a change in ceilings is desirable the most it can do is make a recommendation to the President. The customary time consumed in board discussions and preparation of opinions on so critical a subject would delay board action until just before the election, if not later.

Green said on leaving the White House that he assumed the case would follow the usual course, which means that any recommendation would go to the economic stabilization director before it reaches the President.

CIO President Philip Murray said he pointed out to the President that the steel case, which attacks the wage formula, has been before the WLB since February. Other committee members also complained about WLB delays.

Certain Formula to Break.

Murray recently told the United Auto Workers he was sure the Little Steel formula would be broken soon. The CIO chief said that statement was based on a "personal conviction" and not on any commitment from a government official.

Others present were George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer; Daniel J. Tobin, president of the AFL teamsters; R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, and Julius Emspak, president of the CIO United Electric Workers.

The war labor board meantime is working on a wage plan for the reconversion and Pacific war period and the public members are ready to recommend that the President relax controls sufficiently at the end of war in Europe to permit employers to give wage increases without WLB approval. These voluntary increases, however, could not be the basis of a price increase nor be used to lure workers from plants still turning out war work.

WPB's Curb on Building Service Equipment Ended

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 [Special].—Any piece of building service equipment authorized by WPB on special application may now be installed in an existing building without permission, regardless of cost, the WPB announced today.

Post-War Era Price Stability Is Predicted

"Prices in the early post-war period will not be materially above present levels," Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institution, yesterday told the National Hardwood Lumber association convention in the La Salle hotel. He said that he could see "no reason for believing that we need to have an early post-war inflation period similar to that of 1919."

Because any wage concession to the steel workers must necessarily be followed by similar increases in many other industries, the economist termed the combined AFL-CIO attack on the Little Steel formula a serious menace to the price stabilization program.

Would Start Price Spiral.

"Increases in wage rates would start a spiral of rising costs and rising prices which would tend to be more or less perpetual," he explained. "It is of the utmost consequence to the future of American industry and to the continuing welfare of the masses of labor that wage rates should not be raised with a view to maintaining the level of wartime earnings.

"There are factors in the price situation which are reassuring. The accumulating surpluses of mineral products, agricultural raw materials and foodstuffs will exert a strong downward pressure on prices. Only artificial price controls or general wage increases can prevent reductions in the prices of raw materials and foodstuffs."

Europe's annual post-war lumber needs easily may be double its normal peace imports, said Joseph L. Muller, chief of the lumber unit of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in predicting a large hardwood lumber export market for American and Canadian producers after the war.

Warns of Fickleness.

He warned, however, that lumber demand is fickle and that foreign markets will exist in their maximum scope only as long as those markets believe their needs will be met. Otherwise, they will seek substitutes and new supply sources which, once "in," may remain in the way of export trade.

The job of supplying European needs—which may approximate 5 billion feet in the first two years after the war—will fall almost entirely to the United States and Canada. He said Europe's hardwood resources as a whole have been drained and exploited, and its capacity to produce in the near future may be discounted.

8 MAJOR LABOR GROUPS ASK LIFT IN PAY CEILINGS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—Eight major groups of organized labor added their voices today to the steel workers' demand that the war labor board lift the ceiling on wages imposed by the Little Steel formula.

W. T. Lewis, general counsel for the CIO Glass, Ceramic, and Silica Sand Workers of America, pleaded that the board determine the issue "on its merits and not yield to the pressure and propaganda of those who would inject it into the Presidential campaign."

Similar arguments for nearly 500,000 workers were presented by representatives of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine workers, United Automobile workers, United Packing House workers, United Textile workers, and Aluminum workers, all CIO; the Amalgamated Meat Cutter and Butcher workmen, AFL; and the International Brotherhood of Swift Employes, independent. Tomorrow the companies will be heard.

GRAINS HIGHER AS OPA MULLS LIFT IN CEILING

Reports that the office of price administration is considering an upward revision in the ceiling on cash wheat to bring it in line with parity prices influenced grain trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat futures were up 1¼ cents a bushel at one time on commission house buying, and altho hedging pressure and spreading with the northwest caused a reaction from the top, the close was ⅞ to 1⅛ cents higher. Rye gained 1¼ to 2⅜ cents, following wheat and on a war food administration announcement that consumption of rye was exceeding earlier expectations. Corn was ⅛ to ¾ cent higher; oats ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher, and barley unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

After the market closed the department of agriculture announced the Sept. 15 parity price for wheat was $1.50 a bushel, and that farmers were receiving an average price of $1.35 for their grain.

EDISON FILES 2D BIGGEST SEC REGISTRATION

Total 180 Million; Call 203 Million.

Commonwealth Edison company yesterday registered with the securities and exchange commission in Philadelphia 180 million dollars of securities, the second largest amount ever filed with the SEC. The registration covered first mortgage 3 per cent series L bonds due in 1977, of which 155 millions are to be offered publicly.

The largest registration with the SEC was for 230 million dollars of stocks and bonds, filed by American Telephone and Telegraph company in 1941.

Halsey Heads Underwriters.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago, heads a nation-wide group of investment firms which will underwrite the Edison issue. The offering price to the public will be announced later.

The remaining 25 million dollars of series L bonds will be issued without interest adjustment or underwriting discounts or commissions in exchange for 25 millions of first mortgage 3 per cent series K bonds owned by 14 insurance companies.

Proceeds from bonds sold will be applied to the redemption at 105 of 98 million dollars of 3½ per cent first mortgage series I bonds, due June 1, 1968, and 80 millions of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois 3½ per cent first mortgage bonds, due Oct. 1, 1968, at 105½.

Edison Debt Cut 23 Million.

Additional money required to pay off these two issues, including the $4,900,000 redemption premium on Edison bonds, will be supplied from other funds of the company, including $12,617,146 of unapplied net proceeds from the 1942 sale of 25 millions of first mortgage series I 3 per cent bonds. Public Service will supply the $4,400,000 redemption premium on its bonds. Edison consolidated funded debt will be reduced 23 millions.

To effect the application of 80 million dollars of net proceeds from the 155 millions of series L bonds sold publicly to payment of principal on redemption of Public Service bonds, Edison will purchase for cash 80 millions of 3 per cent unsecured promissory notes of Public Service, due Feb. 1, 1977.

COOL WEATHER BOOSTS AUTUMN APPAREL SALES

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Cool weather stimulated demand for fall apparel and other seasonal goods this week and retail trade volume increased 11 to 15 per cent over 1943, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The agency said volume was up 8 to 12 per cent in the midwest. "Restaurants and housefurnishings, food, jewelry, and drug stores reported good business," the business research firm said.

Apparel lines led in sales, altho stocks have decreased appreciably. Interest was evident in millinery, aprons and smocks, small handbags and children's clothes. Men's clothing and furnishings sales were about even with 1943. Food sales increased about 5 per cent over a year ago.

DOLLAR DIVIDEND VOTED BY CUBAN-AMERICAN SUGAR

Cuban-American Sugar company yesterday declared a dividend of $1 a share. Last year it paid 40 cents.

Northrop Aircraft voted two 25 cent dividends, one of which is payable this year and the other in 1945.

Directors of United Cigar-Whelan Stores corporation extended an offer to exchange the $5 cumulative preferred stock into prior preferred to Jan. 31, 1945, and at the same meeting, voted a $1.25 dividend on the $5 cumulative preferred and the regular quarterly disbursement of 31 cents on the prior preferred.

Stock Market Upturn Is Led by Specialties

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—In an advancing stock market buying today centered on specialties and, altho many leaders lacked stimulating bids, rails and certain pivotals advanced slightly at the close.

Traders continued to argue the question of whether the Germans could keep going into 1945 and as a result customers remained in the conservative ranks. Individual situations propped some favorites and belated realization that continuation of the European conflict may aid railways animated this group.

Aircraft, Machineries Strong.

Aircraft and machinery issues were strong from the opening as actual and anticipated post-war orders provided buying incentives. Gains of fractions to 2 or more points predominated and activity expanded on the advance.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.2 at 54.5. Of 820 issues traded, 403 were up against 217 down and 200 unchanged. Transfers totalled 746,550 shares compared with 636,710 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Rail issues attracted the principal buying interest in today's bond market and numerous members of this group advanced 1 to about 3 points. Expanded activity in the rails boosted total dealings to $7,950,000 from $6,372,900 yesterday.

Prominent carriers at higher prices were Rock Island 4½s of 1952 and refunding 4s of 1934, M-K-T adjustment 5s, Morris and Essex 4½s, New Haven convertible 6s, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, Central of New Jersey 5s, Great Western 4s, and Georgia, Carolina and Northern 6s.

CHICAGO SHARES HIGHER.

Prices were higher on larger turnover of 28,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among volume leaders were Commonwealth Edison and Utah Radio, each up ⅝; Aviation corporation and Leath & Co., each up ⅛, and Chicago corporation, down ⅛. Central and South West Utilities advanced to a new 1944 high.

INCREASED HOG SUPPLIES FAIL TO FILL DEMAND

Hog receipts at the Chicago stock yards yesterday were largest for a Friday in almost two months, but requirements of packers who have a large backlog of pork orders continued well above supplies. Prices again pushed against office of price administration ceilings in almost all classes.

The average remained unchanged at $14.55, equal to the highest average since Oct. 25.

Quality was lacking in cattle and demand was weak. Prices were barely steady. The best loads of steers sold at $16.85, altho odd head of 4-H club steers brought $17 to $18. Weaker prices prevailed for most heifers, beef cows, canners, cutters, bulls, and calves.

Lambs sold at steady prices despite the largest Friday run of the year.

SUIT QUESTIONS RENEGOTIATION ACT'S LEGALITY

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 28 (AP).—Constitutionality of the war contracts renegotiation act was attacked in federal District court today by Magnesium Products, Inc., Los Angeles, which sued the Boeing Aircraft company for $16,817 withheld under the act.

An order of Undersecretary of War Patterson June 6 set excess profits of Magnesium Products for the 1942 fiscal year at $250,000 and Boeing was directed under the war contracts act to hold up for the United States money due Magnesium Products, the suit related.

TRUCKING INDUSTRY TO ASK PERMITS FOR 2 WAY RADIO TESTS

Plans of the trucking industry to equip trucks with two way radio communication will be considered at a Washington hearing about Oct. 25 when the American Trucking association's committee on radio communication will ask temporary short and long range radio bands to carry on tests, Harry Chaddick, committee president, said yesterday.

Chaddick, president of the American Transportation company, Chicago, said the WPB has granted priorities for communication equipment and the first transmitter will be located in Chicago. Proposed communication will be between the trucks and the trucking companies' dispatching offices.

Radio installation on trucks will make it possible to report breakdowns immediately, to control movements of perishable freight, and to reroute traffic when necessary, Chaddick said.

WIDE GAIN IN CHARGE ENTRIES LIFTS TOTAL OF CONSUMER CREDIT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—Consumer credit outstanding increased by about 52 million dollars in August to an estimated 4 billion 933 million, the federal reserve board reported today. Most of this gain was in charge accounts, which rose 43 million to an estimated 1 billion 330 million.

On Aug. 31 consumer credit was about 123 million above Aug. 31, 1943, and charge accounts were 132 million higher. Instalment loans outstanding showed little change in August, but for the second consecutive month, repair and modernization credits increased slightly.

Automotive sale credit continued to increase in August, but at a less rapid rate than in the three preceding months. This type of credit rose 6 million to 210 million. Instalment credit based on sale of other consumer's durable goods remained at about the July level, the total of 501 million being 116 million less than on Aug. 31, 1943.

Arms Output Peak Ahead, Asserts Krug

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—Munitions schedules for the remainder of this year call for "exceeding anything we have been able to achieve before," J. A. Krug asserted today.

The acting chairman of the war production board told a news conference that despite cutbacks "we are at the height of our war needs."

Doubled Rate for Big Bombers.

Krug said production of B-29 and B-32 super bombers, for example, must be stepped up 100 per cent from the August rate to meet 1944 quotas because the year's program was only 42 per cent completed at the end of August.

This does not mean production is behind schedule, it was explained, but that larger output of bombers is scheduled for the closing months of the year.

Predicts Total Near Quota.

Output of combat-loaders, a new type of cargo vessel, must be stepped up 220 per cent, Krug said, and production of A-26 Invader bombers 95 per cent.

Combined war production for 1944, however, will come within 2 or 3 per cent of meeting the over-all volume quota of 67 billion 300 million dollars, he predicted. Production failed to meet goals by 14 per cent in 1942 and last year was 6 per cent short of the mark.

MEXICAN SENATE RATIFIES SEIZED OIL LAND ACCORD

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 29 (AP).—The senate today ratified the settlement between the United States and Mexico in connection with the expropriation in 1938 of United States oil company properties in Mexico.

The settlement, under which the Mexican government will pay $23,995,991 to five companies, largest of which is Standard Oil of New Jersey, also calls for 3 per cent interest from the date of expropriation.

The first installment of one-third was paid in 1943 subject to ratification of the accord by Mexico, The balance will be paid in five annual installments.

FORD MAY BUY PLANE UNIT FOR TRACTOR PLANT

Expansion of Farm Output Expected.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—The vast Willow Run plant, which has built more than 6,000 Liberator bombers, may be used after the war to make farm tractors and implements, Henry Ford II., executive vice president of Ford Motor company, said today.

The Ford company is considering buying the plant for such use, he added, but said no bid has been nor will be submitted until the government decides what to do about its war plants. Defense Plant corporation has invested about 100 million dollars in Willow Run, including buildings and equipment, Ford estimated.

No Letup in War Output.

The motor executive said his company will not letup in war production until victory over both Germany and Japan has been won. The needs of American fighting men must come before any civilian production, he insisted.

Henry Ford, founder and president of the company, issued a formal statement amplifying the company's position.

"Farming is in for its biggest expansion," he said. "Every day we are finding new products—plastics, chemicals, and food—we can make from things that grow. We have a laboratory at Dearborn working on nothing but finding out more about farm products.

Much Equipment Needed.

"The world will need plenty of equipment to take care of this work and we are thinking of using Willow Run for the production of tractors and other kinds of farm tools. We are not going to scrap a bit of machinery. We can find other ways of making use of every piece of it and there just isn't any sense to the idea of storing machinery in big warehouses."

Ray Rausch, production manager for Ford's big Rouge plant, indicated the Ford company may get the jump on its competitors in the race to get back into automobile production when reconversion is permitted. He explained that because of the integrated Ford operation the company will probably be able to reconvert faster than other motor car builder. For example, the company has a tool shop employing 6,000 which will be able to make most of the tools, dies, and fixtures it will need.

Rausch estimated that Ford will be able to be in substantial auto production within four months after reconversion starts compared with the eight months or longer predicted by executives of other companies.

Newsmen Tour Plants.

The automotive council for war production took newspaper men on a tour of Detroit war plants to demonstrate the vast physical problem that must be met in reconverting plants to civilian production.

Plants visited included, besides Willow Run, the Murray Corporation of America, maker of airplane wings and other items; Fisher Body's Fleetwood plant, where aircraft instruments and other items are made, and the Plymouth division of Chrysler corporation, which makes numerous weapons including the Bofors gun.

In these plants were acres of machines of all sizes weighing a few hundred pounds to nearly 300 tons. The Chrysler corporation alone has 1 million dies, fixtures, and machines that must be overhauled before being returned to peace time use. Hundreds of miles of conveyor systems must be installed. The task of moving out the war machines and installing peace time units will be staggering, especially if all companies start at once, it was said.

Ask Aid to Bar Federal Rule of Insurance

A subcommittee for the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners yesterday invited representatives of all insurance lines to suggest methods of retaining state regulation of the business. The subcommittee was formed in June soon after the United States Supreme court, in a 4 to 3 decision, ruled that the insurance business was in interstate commerce and subject to federal regulation.

From yesterday's meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel and others scheduled next week, the group hopes to obtain information which will enable it to draft specific legislative proposals which would exempt the insurance business from federal control.

Would Implement Principles.

The legislative measures contemplated would implement a declaration of principles adopted by the subcommittee at a meeting in St. Louis last month.

The declaration recommended that congress [1] enact affirmative legislation under the commerce clause of the Constitution that regulation and taxation of the insurance business remain in the states, and [2] amend the federal trade commission act, the Robinson-Patman act, and the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts to exclude the insurance business.

Asks Constitutional Amendment.

The first recommendation the subcommittee received was for a constitutional amendment, suggested by Edward C. Stone, spokesman for the Employers Liability Assurance corporation, Boston, and the stock casualty branch of the industry.

He said the insurance business had so many details and ramifications that it would be difficult to draft comprehensive and specific legislation, and "not leave any doubts about it."

PRICE CONTROL HELD NECESSARY INFLATION CURB

Continuation of "tight price control," at least during reconversion, will be necessary to avoid runaway prices and a resultant economic crash, William F. Kelly, price executive of OPA's machinery price branch, said yesterday.

Before a war problems session of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the La Salle hotel, Kelly said manufacturers must retain prices based on list and established prices as of a certain period until they can "show hardship." Price hardships will not be determined on individual cases, but rather will be based on whether a price is fair and equitable within an industry.

Exceptions occur, however, he said. In the machinery field if the price of an item is an impediment to production, individual adjustments may be made. When industry reconverts to production of prewar products, it must absorb increased costs until it can demonstrate hardships on an individual product or overall basis, he added.

IMPORTERS ASK OPA TO REMOVE COFFEE CONTROL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—Coffee importers have appealed to the OPA to remove the commodity from price control to avert what they say is a threatened shortage and a possible return to rationing.

They have told OPA that altho stockpiles are larger than when rationing was discontinued, they are being depleted because Latin American growers are refusing to sell at existing importer ceilings.

OPA spokesmen expressed doubt that this situation will continue to a point where coffee would have to go back on the ration list. OPA estimated the current coffee stockpile at 660 million pounds, compared with 488 million when rationing was discontinued.

HEAR LINOLEUM MAKER MAY BUY HAMMOND TRACT

Sloane-Blabon corporation, New York City, maker of floor coverings, yesterday was reported to be negotiating for 40 acres on the south bank of the Grand Calumet river and the west side of Cline av., in Hammond. The property is owned by the South Shore railroad. It is understood that a linoleum manufacturing plant to cost several millions is contemplated. Houlder Hudgins, president, said he could not discuss the report.

FISHER MOTOR COMPANIES ARE INCORPORATED

Airplane and Auto Making Involved.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Fisher brothers will return to the automotive industry. This was disclosed today with the filing at the Michigan corporation and securities commission of articles of incorporation for two new companies to bear the name of the Fisher brothers to design, manufacture, sell, repair, and deal in airplanes, automobiles "and any and all automotive products."

Lawrence Fisher.

Lawrence, William, Edward, and Alfred Fisher set automobile industry circles speculating two months ago when they suddenly announced the termination of their active connection with General Motors corporation.

Four Were G. M. Officials.

Noted as pioneers in the automobile body business, they had been associated with General Motors for approximately a quarter century. Lawrence, William, and Edward had been vice presidents of the corporation and Edward also had been general manager of the corporation's Fisher Body division. Alfred was director of aircraft activities of the division.

Joining the four brothers in incorporating the two new companies today was Charles T. Fisher, another brother, who is president of Fisher & Co., organized to handle the family interests outside General Motors.

The brothers are understood to be the largest holders of General Motors stock next to du Pont family.

The two new firms incorporated today are the Fisher Brothers, Inc., Delaware and Detroit, and Fisher Motor Car company, Delaware and Detroit, each with 1,000 shares of no par common stock. Incorporators were L. E. Gray, L. H. Herman, and W. T. Cunningham, all of Wilmington, Del. Fisher Brothers, Inc., was issued a certificate of authority to operate in Illinois.

Specific Plans Unreported.

Beyond disclosure of the filing of articles of incorporation today no details have been given of the specific plans of the Fishers. There have been many rumors in automobile industry circles that they might figure in a merger of a number of smaller automobile concerns to convert the "big three" of General Motors, Chrysler, and Ford into a "big four." Executives of all the smaller companies have denied knowledge of such a possibility.

The Fishers organized their first Fisher Body corporation in 1908 and when it was taken over in 1926 by General Motors the then seven Fisher brothers were said to have received General Motors stock worth close to 208 million dollars for their holdings.

HARVEST NEARS FOR 100 ACRES OF SUNFLOWERS

Monticello, Ill., Sept. 29 [Special].—More than 100 acres of sunflowers will soon be harvested in Piatt county and the farmers who raised them believe the gaudy yellow blooms represent a profitable new crop.

A market for the flowers was assured before they were planted last June. The seeds will be bought by Monticello's Vic-Bin corporation, whose president, Ezra Levin, has been experimenting for five years with the sunflower's possibilities as a source of food and industrial raw materials.

The University of Illinois has agreed to conduct experiments in home economics, animal raising, farm economics, and management to aid in commercial development of the crop. "Key to the new project is solvent extraction of oil at low temperature from the sunflower seed," said Levin.

Marshall Field Jr., Group Sells Big Garage Building

Marshall Field Jr., Joanne Bass Field, his wife, and others, yesterday sold the five story garage building at 916-18 S. Wabash av., 50 by 165 feet, to Peter K. Barskis Jr., for $33,000, thru Gilbert Scribner, of Winston & Co. The new owner will use the building for a wholesale furniture business.

NEW MONSANTO PRODUCTS.

I understand Monsanto Chemical company is making certain new products. What information is available concerning them?—L. G.

Development or acquisition of new products has been an important factor in the long term growth of Monsanto which makes more than 300 chemical items. The more recent additions include a plastic known as cerex. It is described as holding its shape and strength under high temperatures, but moldable by low cost mass production methods.

War products made of this material include radar and radio parts, aircraft parts, and surgical instrument handles. Preparations were recently completed by Monsanto to begin volume production of DDT, an insecticide chemically known as dichloro-diphenyl-trichloroethane and used principally by the army.

Among several processes newly developed for improving textiles are methods of treating wool fibers to prevent shrinking and to reduce a tendency of woolen fabrics to become shiny from wear. The company's operations were further diversified a few months ago by the acquisition of the capital stock of I. F. Laucks, Inc., Seattle, Wash., producer of plywood glues and wood preservatives.

Styrene research was started by Monsanto late in 1939 with the result that it built a pl
